WELCOMED BY MANY FRIENDS

Released Lifer, in Tears, Thanks Deity for Delivery From Prison Walls

The prison gates at Charlestown opened today and James Barr walked out, a free man.

A group of men who have worked for four years for the moment when they could greet the little Scotsman as he emerged from the State prison, met him as he was led from the gates.

For twenty-three years Barr has been in prison for a crime committed while under the influence of drink. His friends actually leaped at him, pumped his arms, embraced him.

"MIRACLE" PICTURE APPEARS

Likeness of St. Joseph Mysteriously Comes on Amesbury Woman's Pillow

Amesbury, May 3.—A dark outline picture, resembling the accepted pictures of St. Joseph, which has mysteriously appeared on a pillowslip in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Medric St. Cyr at No. 27 Dublin street, is the talk of the town today.

Mrs. Marjorie St. Cyr, the housewife, who reported to a priest the sudden appearance of the likeness of St. Joseph, believes it is a portent of something unusual which is about to happen to the St. Cry family.

She says similar likenesses of saints have appeared on household fabrics in her old home in Canada and have been followed by some unusual development, not necessarily misfortune. It might be good fortune.

The "miracle," as Mrs. St. Cyr hails it, is attracting many visitors to the St. Cyr home in the "Brickyard" section of the town. The cottage was crowded with callers today.

The household includes Mr. and Mrs. St. Cyr, and two lodgers, Joseph Lefevre and John Burque. St. Cyr is an automobile workman.

The pillow-slip on which the likeness of St. Joseph appeared is of the ordinary type and was purchased by Mrs. St. Cyr two years ago. It has been used on the bed occupied by the lodgers.

Mrs. St. Cyr first noticed the likeness on the slip Monday. She was so impressed that she told a priest,

Judge Refuses to Break Heart of a Child

Chicago, May 3.—Someone's heart must be broken, and it shall not be a child's.

Such was the decision of Judge Joseph B. David yesterday that led him to reverse the precedent set by Solomon and award Alice Beatrice Nuttall to a foster instead of her real mother.

"It is not a question," read Judge David's decision, "that the heart of the mother would be broken or the hearts of the foster parents would be broken, but that the heart of a child would be broken."

10 DEAD IN UTAH R. R. WRECK

25 Passengers Are Injured as Cars Crash Into Engines Upset in Canyon

Salt Lake City, May 3.—Eight passengers and two trainmen were killed and twenty-five passengers were injured, some fatally, in a wreck of an eastbound Denver & Rio Grande Western passenger train, near Woodside, Utah.

Two engines pulling the train of eleven cars were overturned, killing one engineer and one fireman, and the baggage car and smoking coach crashed into the wreckage. The eight passengers killed were occupants of the smoking car, it was reported here.

Officials of the road said the cause of the wreck was unknown. One report said the two locomotives were swept from the tracks by a landslide.

None of the dead have been identified, railroad officials here say.

The wreck occurred in the treacherous canyon country of a mountainous region two miles east of Woodside late last night.

GIRL'S BODY FOUND IN RIVER

Mystery in Death of Mary Curran of Lowell, Missing 13 Days

Amesbury, May 3.—Discovery of a girl's body floating in the Merrimack River has developed mystery as to the circumstances connected with her death.

The body was identified by Martin Curtin of No. 86 Agawam street, Lowell, as that of his twenty-four-year-old daughter, Mary, who disappeared suddenly from home thirteen days ago.

The girl's father said his daughter had a nervous breakdown a few days before she left home. He believes she committed suicide.

The only mark on the body was a slight cut on the forehead.

The body was clothed only in black, low-cut shoes and two pairs of stockings. There was an inner pair of silk stockings and over these an outer pair of cotton.

The head of the dog has been sent to the State Department of Health for a bacteriological examination.

BODY OF MISSING LOWELL GIRL, GONE 13 DAYS, FOUND IN RIVER

PROBE OF DEATH DEMANDED AFTER REPORT OF SUICIDE

phy of this town has declared death due to drowning; also that the girl had probably committed suicide. No autopsy has been ordered.

But questions are being raised whether a girl planning to die by drowning would remove her clothing to that extent and, if she did, why did she retain two pairs of stockings and her shoes.

The body was in remarkable state of preservation. It did not seem to have been in the water more than twenty-four hours, although the girl disappeared thirteen days ago.

This raised another question as to the girl's whereabouts during the interim between her leaving home and discovery of the body.

The condition of her stockings, which were without tears or other marks of severe wear, indicated that the body had not been in the water long and that there had been no damage by stones, driftwood or other agency.

There were no marks of violence apparent.

On the evening of her disappearance she was seen on Dizzy Bridge by Fred Ball and a Mrs. Sharkey, both of whom have known her for years. They commented upon her using the structure, a high railroad trestle over the flooded Concord river with no foot path or rails, in the darkness.

Ball and Mrs. Sharkey were standing in the Wigginsville railroad station when the girl walked out on the bridge. That was the last time she was seen alive.

Her family and friends say she could have had no object in going out on the bridge except to leap into the torrent which raged under it.

It has also been established that a note found pinned to a tree in Lakeview Park was not written by Mary. Her father and brother declare the writing was not hers. The police believe the note to have been written by one of two other missing Lowell girls.

Mary had worked at the United States Cartridge Company works. A few weeks ago her father took her away from her work, as she had suffered from neurosis and a nervous breakdown threatened.

The police are now trying to determine who wrote the note found pinned to a tree in Lakeview park. It bore neither date nor signature and read:

APPEALED FOR HELP.

"Will somebody save me?" was the pathetic plea voiced in the note. "I am being taken to the old Zoo Camp. God knows where I will go from there. Don't tell mother."

The note bore neither date nor signature. A search of the old Zoo Camp failed to disclose any trace of her or her possible abductors. The girl had vanished and no sign of her was found until her white form was seen on the swollen current of the Merrimack by employes of the Davis Foundry at Lawrence. A boat was rapidly launched, but by the time the middle of the river had been reached, the body had been swept out of sight.

Motorcycle police raced with the current for ten miles in an effort to overtake and recover the body, but gave up the chase at Haverhill.

A few hours later, the body was recovered from the river here by Reed F. Williams and George Werthen, who had gone in a boat to gather driftwood.

In six and a half hours, the body had been swept along by the current from Lawrence to Amesbury, a distance of forty miles by way of the river.

Traveling as it was, at the rate of almost seven miles an hour, the body could have traversed the entire distance from Lowell to Amesbury in a day's time.

WINCHESTER MAN HIT BY AUTO ON BRIDGE

Ralph D. Whitney, forty-five years old, of No. 639 Maine street, Winchester was hit today on Mystic Bridge, Charlestown, by an automobile operated by Charles H. Kreschness, of Myrtle street, Medford. He was treated at the Relief Hospital for injuries to his head and face.

Female Bluebird Proved to Be a Bigamist

The fickleness of the female bluebird has been definitely established. Bands placed on the legs of birds by observers in this State formed the telltale evidence. Every band so placed bears a number in a regular series so as to enable the identification of birds from season to season.

Last May Rev. George E. Allen of Plainfield banded with the number 17,236 a bluebird which was brooding five young in a nest box. In July she hatched three more young in another box. Her mate with the last brood was No. 17,243. She returned last month, but when Mr. Allen discovered her perched in the box where she hatched her last brood her companion was not No. 17,243, but another songster in brilliant blue and orange coat, No. 17,249.

ENGINEER HELD FOR TECHNICAL LARCENY

Ernest J. Taylor, a mechanical engineer living in Needham Heights was arraigned in the Municipal Court today on a technical charge of larceny. The complainant was William H. Jaquith, an Andover insurance man, who alleges that Taylor swindled him out of $2,500.

The complainant charges that Taylor interested him in an invention, that he gave Taylor $2,500, with the understanding that a company was to be formed the next day to market the device, and that Jaquith was to receive a substantial share of stock in the new corporation.

Jaquith alleges that Taylor appropriated the $2,500 to his own use and that the complainant cannot get satisfaction.

Taylor pleaded not guilty and the case was continued to May 22.

JARDINE BALKS ON PRODUCING GORDON GEMS

William F. Jardine, temporary guardian of Dorothy Gordon, refused flatly to produce her diamonds and other jewelry at the examination into the guardianship proceedings today before Gilbert A. A. Pevey as master.

Jardine reiterated this refusal to insistent demands of Attorney John L. Sheehan, counsel for Dorothy's uncle, John D. Gardiner.

Jardine admitted that he had written to Dorothy letters of love and affection.

Mrs. Sue Jordan was again at the hearing, waiting to be called as a witness against Jardine, who has been charged by her former husband, Elmer L. Jordan, with having stolen her affections when she was Jordan's wife.

DEFIES SHEEHAN.

The jewelry dispute between Attorney Sheehan and Jardine ran thus:

Q.—Can you produce here diamonds and jewelry which are property of Dorothy Gordon? A.—No, I'll produce them at the safe deposit vault.

Q.—I demand that you produce them here. A.—I will not. I have a list of them I will furnish.

"We don't want your list," retorted Sheehan with rising emphasis. "We have one."

"Oh, no, you haven't either," retorted Jardine.

Sheehan shouted: "Will you produce them?"

Jardine shouted back: "No!"

Regarding letters Sheehan asked: "Have you any letters written by you to Dorothy Gordon?"

"No."

Q.—You wrote letters to Dorothy? A.—Yes.

EXPRESSED LOVE.

Q.—Did those letters contain expressions of love and affection? A.—Yes.

The examination results from petition of Dorothy's uncle, John L. Gardiner, for an accounting of the Jardine guardianship over the $500,000 heiress, now in McLean Hospital at Waverley.

Examination sessions are in one of the smaller hearing rooms in Suffolk county courthouse and are open, despite urgent request of Jardine that they be closed.

ADMITS "LEGAL WRONG."

Mrs. Jordan was to be called at the close of the cross-examination of Mr. Jardine, who took the stand again at the resumption of the hearing. Mrs. Jordan disappeared soon after papers in the alienation suit were served on Jardine two months ago, and this is her first appearance in public since then.

Toward the close of an all-day grilling at the hands of Attorney John L. Sheehan, Jardine admitted that "I was legally wrong" in allowing the Baldwin, L. I., house of Dorothy Gordon to be sold for taxes while, according to his own admission, he had sufficient funds to pay the taxes.

CHARGED FOR SERVICES.

"Did you charge the estate for your services during the time that you were legally wrong?" asked Attorney Sheehan.

"I charged for all of my services," was the reply.

Efforts to secure a more specific admission failed, Jardine sticking to the same reply.

It was also brought out that Jardine owns one share of stock in the Gordon Supply Company and that Dorothy will need one more share to gain control of the company in 1934, when her stock will be turned over to her by trustees.

The Long Island home was the subject of much of the cross-examination. Jardine admitted that he received no rent for the place until the rental had mounted to $1,050. When asked to explain this he said that he had made an agreement with the tenant whereby the later paid for certain repairs on the house and the money was allowed in rent.

Jardine stated that the property was depreciating and that its locality "was going down."

The figure is about eighteen inches lang and runs lengthwise on the pillow. It is an outline figure in dark lines, much the same effect as produced by ordinary pen and ink outline drawing.

The outline shows the figure, the folds of a cassock-like garment and features like those attributed to St. Joseph in the idealistic portraits which are familiar to all who have followed religious art.

Killed by Hazers

LEIGHTON MOUNT.

QUERY WOMAN IN STUDENT'S DEATH PROBE

Chicago, May 3.—Grand jury investigation into the death of Leighton Mount, Northwestern University freshman who disappeared after a class rush on the night of September 21, 1921, is requested of Robert E. Crowe, State's attorney, in a formal statement issued jointly by Walter Dill Scott, president of the university, and the board of trustees.

The statement was made public after a coroner's inquest had been started over the bleached bones which were found under a pier on the lake front in Evanston, the university's home.

Coincident with the university's formal statement came an announcement from the school's student council that it had passed a resolution that any student found guilty by it of organizing or participating in any form of class rush, supervised or unsupervised, would be recommended to the faculty for expulsion.

The university's statement said: "It is determined to ascertain the cause of Leighton Mount's death and fix the responsibility therefore." It directed the university's counsel to take steps to bring all evidence before the Grand Jury. Authorities said that the suicide theory has been abandoned as a result of questioning Miss Doris Fuchs. She will be a witness before the coroner's jury.

Miss Fuchs denied she received a note from Mount suggesting he planned to commit suicide, the investigators declared. The note, she explained, said, "If I don't see you again, good-bye," and referred to her intended departure from Evanston and not Mount's.

Miss Fuchs said the letter was in her mail box the morning after Mount disappeared. It bore no stamp and apparently was delivered personally. Although the letter was unsigned, Miss Fuchs said she was sure it was written by Mount.

RALLY TO AID HEAD OF PIGGLY WIGGLY

Memphis, Tenn., May 3.—Organized under the slogan, "Memphis will take care of her own," scores of leading business men of this city today began an intensive campaign of personal solicitation for the sale of stock of the Piggly-Wiggly Stores, Inc.

To the corporation's president, Clarence Saunders, centre of the recent Piggly-Wiggly sensation in the New York Stock Exchange, they enthusiastically pledged their support at a dinner attended by the "friends of Saunders."

Teams were organized under the direction of a "central committee" and proposed by three days of activity, for which they will receive no financial remuneration, to carry to success the local capitalists' plan of disposing of 50,000 shares of Class "A" Piggly-Wiggly stock to the public.

The action of the local business men was taken under the leadership of the Memphis Chamber of Commerce. The rally of the citizens followed publication in newspaper advertisements of Mr. Saunders' declaration that "unless I sell the Piggly Wiggly Class 'A' stock I will go broke," which was immediately under the caption "Wall Street Is Right."

APATHY OVER TEETH DECAY STIRS DENTISTS

Dr. F. O. Kidd

A scourge of dental decay, affecting more than 85 per cent. of the boys and girls is not likely to cause alarm or to stimulate preventive action in government circles here or in Canada, according to Dr. Wallace Seccombe of the Royal College of Dental Surgery of Toronto, who spoke at the fifty-ninth annual meeting of the Massachusetts Dental Society, in session this week at the Copley-Plaza.

He ventured the opinion that similar conditions, if prevalent among cattle and hogs, would be viewed as a national calamity in governmental eyes and move the appointment of a commissison within twenty-four hours to study and wipe out the plague. His subject was "Diet and the Teeth."

LAUDS CO-OPERATION.

Dr. H. W. Alden

He rejoiced at the growing co-operation between the medical and dental professions, pointing out that there is little difference between the two as far as the digestive system is concerned. The teeth he classed as the only part of the alimentary tract in all its 30 feet that is under control of the will, and said that increase in diseases of the digestive tract is due largely to tooth ailments.

Dr. A. E. Smith

Stressing the increasing importance and ever widening scope of dental science, William Rice, president of the society, in his annual address at the first session of the day, declared that steps should be taken without delay for erection of a suitable building for the society, which should include large halls and a comprehensive and up-to-date library of dental literature.

URGES COURSE OF STUDY.

He also recommended that courses of study in modern practice and methods be established throughout the State, trouhgh which practicing dentists could keep up with the times.

Dr. A. W. Day

The meeting voted to submit his recommendations to the executive committee, with instructions to take action, that they might receive prompt attention.

Other speakers yesterday were Dr. John O. McCall of New York, who delivered an essay on "Recent Studies in the Etiology of Periodontoclasia," and Dr. Harvey J. Burkhart of Rochester, N. Y., who delivered a memorial address at a special session, eulogizing Dr. Waldo E. Boardman, a former president of the society, who died last August.

Dr. R. H. Norton

Among the dentists attending the convention convention are: Dr. Frank O. Kidd, president-elect, of Fall River; Dr. Harold W. Alden, vice-president-elect, of Northampton; Dr. A. W. Day, State editor; Dr. Richard H. Norton and Dr. Arthur E. Smith, of Chicago.

The Premier has accepted the resignation of Under-Secretary for Pensions Di Vecchi. The post will not be filled, owing to the government's desire to economize, which has already led to the suppression of three ministries and five under-secretaryships.

CRUDE OIL CUT AGAIN IN THE PRICE WAR

New York, May 3 (By International News Service). — Eastern crude oil prices took another tumble today when the Joseph Zeep Purchasing Agency at Pittsburgh, buyers for Standard Oil, announced a reduction of 25 cents a barrel at the wells on all grades except Corning, which is off 15 cents a barrel. Ragland is unchanged.

This reduction is another step in billion dollar oil war for domination of the rich mid-continent field.

The power and wealth of the Standard Oil group towering like a giant in the oil industry ever since John D. Rockefeller organized it is being used to crush independents and small refiners, the latter charged.

Walter C. Teagle, president of the Standard Oil Company of New Jersey, today, called stories of such a war "fantastic."

"It is a case of cut prices, break the small producer, acquire his property, raise prices," as some of the alarmed smaller producers put it.

Summed up recent developments are explained thus:

1—An attempt to cripple the small producer, forcing him to sell gasoline at artificially depressed prices, just as the most active gasoline season is due.

2—Efforts to force down prices of Standard Oil securities which were liquidated at peak prices by "insiders" when shares soared under the influence of the huge dividends. Also a drive to send independent oil stocks tumbling.

3—Fooling the public into believing the reductions by Standard Oil companies are voluntary, so price advances a few weeks from now will NOT attract criticism.

BARR WALKS OUT OF PRISON A FREE MAN

Barr blinked his eyes at the sunlight.

He seemed dazed, unable to speak. Tears coursed down his cheeks and he trembled violently.

It was several minutes before he could find his voice. The first thing he said:

"Thank God for His mercy."

To a reporter of the Boston American he said:

"I shall be grateful to my dying day for what your newspaper did to bring my case to public attention. I know that it helped the loyal friends who have worked so hard to get me out of prison.

"I don't feel a bit like King Lear now. I cannot feel or express any emotion but that of gratitude. I'm grateful. I have no ill-feeling against any of those who fought to keep me in a cell.

"I forgive them all—my former wife and my children. I don't know yet why they were so bitter, why they were so anxious to see me stay in prison. But it doesn't matter. I am free."

IS PROVIDED FOR.

Barr is not confronted with the usual problems that face a convict released from prison. The Scottish organizations which backed the fight to free him have made provisions for him. They, too, are celebrating, for Barr was the only Scotchman in the State of Massachusetts in prison. The slate is now clean.

There were 60,000 members of the various Scotch organizations which arrayed themselves against the six people in Barr's home town of Fitchburg, who fought the release of the old man.

These were George H. Godbeer, Fitchburg editor and politician; his brother-in-law, Representative Harry Wheelock; Barr's former wife and her three children.

FAMILY PRIDE.

Stubborn family pride appeared to be the only reason why Mrs. Barr and her children were opposed to the release of Barr, and they were backed by Godbeer and Wheelock.

On April 25th the Governor's Council voted to commute the life sentence of Barr to a sentence of from thirty years to life. This made Barr eligible for immediate parole.

The parole board met today at the prison and within ten minutes from the time the meeting was held the necessary routine had been effected and Barr was a free man.

DR. NOLAN, of Pennsylvania, has found a new cure for consumption in carbon and calcium, administered in a form that can be inhaled. There seems no doubt that he has made an important discovery.

There comes also news that poison gas, used to kill men in the war, is found now useful in fighting diseases of many kinds. Administered with success, these gases destroy the germs of disease, without destroying life or injuring health.

THE WORLD goes forward strangely. It builds the expensive automobile that the rich man may amuse himself, going nowhere in particular in a great hurry. Then comes the cheap car for the little man.

War starts with killing. It ends by getting rid of autocrats. It develops the flying machine, and in the very agent invented to administer death it finds death for disease germs and health for human beings.

Providence as usual works mysteriously.

THE WOMEN of the United States are advised to do without sugar, to fight sugar gamblers and bring down the price. It seems pathetic that our government, always able to oblige railroads with extra rates, able to do such wonderful things in war, is not able to protect the family sugar bowl in peace.

There ought to be somebody in the government able to offer the women of the country a better plan than going without.

AND THAT isn't the worst of it. There is actually a serious protest by sugar gentlemen to the effect that when women agree not to buy any more sugar than is necessary, that is a "conspiracy" and they ought to be prosecuted.

To make the thing complete, they ought to arrest a few women and lock them up for not buying enough sugar to put the price as high as gamblers would like to have it.

That would be a fine comment on the American system of protecting the people from exploitation, and "taxation without representation."

AT FORT SASKATCHEWAN, of the poetic name, a man and woman were hanged yesterday for murdering a constable. They hanged the man first, out of politeness. The woman, Mrs. Lassandra, died forty-one minutes later. It was the first Canadian hanging of a woman in twenty-one years.

You ask:

"How long will civilized government set the example of killing?"

You also ask what happened to Mrs. Lassandra and Mr. Piccarillo when they landed on the other shore. Did they actually land there, or are they waiting in their graves, covered with quicklime, for the Angel Gabriel to summon them?

WERE THEY suddenly transported to an uncomfortable place, where demons with sharp claws, representing eternal justice, began tormenting them with a torment never to end through all eternity?

It would be interesting to know what really happens to the good and the bad, those that are hanged and those that die peacefully, after they cross the Styx.

AN ASSYRIAN, probably insane, goes to the asylum, after threatening the life of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., shouting, "He has sold out my country." Murad, that Assyrian, also blamed the Bolsheviki for his nation's troubles.

Mr. Murad should know that the Rockefellers, in foreign countries, distribute hospitals and oil cans, often the only utensils available. Here the Rockefellers use their money largely in education, scientific institutions, fighting disease, with occasional purchases of works of art. The

LOVE TO SOLVE MISSING GIRL MYSTERY

MISS ELIZABETH K. COIT

PEEPING TOM IN LYNN FOILED BY SCREAMS

Lynn's peeping Tom who, for some time past, has been operating in the centre of the city, today returned to activity in the eastern section of the town, where he made two attempts to enter the home of Mrs. Harrison Randall of No. 4 Madison street.

The intruder attempted twice to enter the room occupied by the five children of Mrs. Randall by a former marriage, through the first-floor window, which is about six feet from the ground. The children are: Ethel M. Stickney, sixteen years old; Mabel L., thirteen; Arlene O., twelve; Ernest R., eleven, and Lawrence E., nine.

The family was aroused by the screams of Ethel, who saw the intruder make his second attempt to enter the room within an hour. During the first attempt the girl said nothing, as the man withdrew. On the second attempt the man had placed his leg through the window when she discovered him. Her stepfather and her mother telephoned the police.

Before the police arrived the man disappeared, escaping to the woods through Madison street.

Arlene, the third daughter, was severely upset by shock. This is the fifth attempt made to enter the room of the children in the last few months.

FEAR BANKER'S DAUGHTER WAS KIDNAPED

Elizabeth K. Coit, missing banker's daughter, is twenty-two years old, five feet five inches tall; with blue eyes, pretty features, high color and light brown hair. She wore blue serge dress, tan polo coat, brown fur neckpiece, small black hat with pink facing. She carried a traveling bag and small black leather handbag with initials or name.

New York, May 3.—A secret love affair, leading to an elopement, was the theory advanced today by the police in the mystery of missing Elizabeth K. Coit, 22-year old daughter of Vice-President Charles H. Coit of the National Bank of Litchfield, Ct.

The parents believe that she had been kidnaped. Suggestion of another Dorothy Arnold case is made.

Miss Frances Stewart of Montclair, N. J., chum of Elizabeth, thinks the missing girl is suffering from aphasia or loss of memory.

Relatives of Elizabeth scout the police theory of a love affair, maintaining that it is out of the question. But the police base this theory on their experience in cases of many other missing girls.

Elizabeth had been living with her aunts, who have a fashionable dancing academy in Montclair, N. J. Her parents were visiting in this city. They arranged for her to meet them at the Grand Central Station Monday to catch the 4:30 express for home.

Elizabeth, who is reported to have cashed a $50 check Saturday, left Montclair on the 12:40 Lackawanna train and was observed leaving the train at Hoboken. She failed to meet her parents at the Grand Central.

No trace of her came until yesterday afternoon. Then William Friedlander, tailor at No. 198 Broadway, told the police that he saw a girl like Miss Coit on the subway train on which he was riding Monday to catch the same 4:30 train which the Coits expected to take with their daughter. The girl asked him whether the train would take her to the Grand Central. The initials on her handbag were "E. K. C.," as Friedlander recalls.

DOUGHBOY'S FIGURE ON FRENCH MEMORIAL

Paris, May 3.—The figures of an American machine gunner, a grenadier, and a French light-infantryman will be conspicuous features of a monument to be erected on the Ferme de Navarine, the scene of some of the bitterest fighting of the World War. The monument is to be dedicated "to the dead of the armies of the Champagne." The American soldier will be included in "homage to the gallantry of the soldiers of the great American Republic." The Forty-second Division took a prominent part in the conflict on July 15, 1918.

ALIEN SHIPS TO BRING IN RUM

U. S. Treasury Will Permit Ample Supplies for "Medical" Purposes

By International News Service.

Washington, May 3.—Foreign ships will be allowed to enter American ports after June 10, partly "wet," despite the Supreme Court's decision.

Treasury regulations now being drafted for the enforement of the court's decision will allow foreign vessels to have abundant medical liquor stocks. Ship surgeons will be permitted to determine how much liquor will be required to meet normal needs during voyages.

Great care was exercised today by experts of the treasury to accord foreign ships the widest latitude concerning medical whiskey and wine supplies. Before the regulations are finished it is probable that the foreign ship lines may be allowed to suggest their own maximum of liquor stocks for this purpose gauged by the number of passengers and the size of the crew.

ALL RECEIVED NOTICE.

After Secretary Hughes received notice from Secretary Mellon that the regulations will become effective on June 10 the State Department communicated that fact to all of its diplomatic and consular officers, with instructions to acquaint the foreign governments where they are assigned, concerning liquor decision.

Envoys abroad are directed to provide for widest publicity, especially among the foreign shipping companies of the provisions of the Supreme Court's ruling. Emphasis was placed upon Secretary Mellon's notice that it will be unlawful for a foreign ship to enter an American port after June 10, with beverage liquors.

FOR CLOSE INSPECTION.

Officials today arranged for a very close inspection of foreign ships as soon as the regulations become effective. Treasury officials admitted that the customs' force is small at its present strength to permit minute search of all ships arriving from foreign ports.

The Treasury Department is relying upon voluntary compliance by foreign shipping lines. Officials believed most of the companies will comply until Congress has had a chance to amend the law, exempting foreign ships from the provisions of the Volstead law.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS TACKLES DRUG EVIL

Washington, May 3.—The advisory committee of the League of Nations on the narcotic question, will meet in Geneva on May 24. An American delegation will attend in a "consultative capacity," and will, it is understood, formally broach the subject of an international convention such as was proposed by the Porter resolution enacted by the last Congress.

Stephen G. Porter

The American delegation includes Representative Stephen G. Porter of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee.

GERMAN OFFER IS SPURNED

France Flatly Refuses to Consider Tender of 30 Billion Gold Marks

Paris, May 3 (By International News Service).—The French Cabinet unanimously decided today that the German reparations proposals, offering 30,000,000,000 gold marks, is not acceptable to France. Such action had been anticipated. A similar decision is expected by Belgium.

The French Foreign Office outlined four reasons why the German offer was unacceptable.

1—Because Germans will continue their passive resistance in the Ruhr.

2—Germany demands evacuation of the Ruhr by French and Belgian troops as a condition for acceptance of the proposals.

3—There is no guarantee that Germany will be successful in raising an international loan to pay off 20,000,000,000 gold marks by 1927.

4—France is opposed to arbitration of the reparations issue by a committee of experts.

German Mine Officials Fined and Imprisoned

Essen, May 3 (By the Associated Press).—Two directors of the Heinrichs Mine & Machine Works at Hattingen have been sentenced by a French courtmartial to serve five years in prison and to pay fines amounting to 250,000,000 marks.

The directors, whose names are Jaeger and Zoellner, were charged among other things with having caused the sirens of their plant to sound when occupation troops and officials appeared on the property, thus rallying an assembly of workmen, which endangered the lives of the visiting authorities.

The men were also accused of violating the coal export regulations and with disturbing the public order in that it sent coal by an aerial tramway from the mine just inside the occupied area to the machine works which lie immediately across the Franco-Belgian customs border.

Town Cut Off During Trial

Werden, May 3 (By the Associated Press).—This little town on the Ruhr River, only a few miles from Essen, will be completely cut off from the outside world and entirely surrounded by a cordon of troops during the trial of Dr. Gustav Krupp Von Bohlenund Halbach, president of the Krupp Works, and the three Krupp directors. The proceedings are scheduled to take place tomorrow.

Only bearers of special permits issued by the French military authorities will be permitted to enter or leave Werden while the court is sitting. This measure is designed to prevent demonstrations by workers and unemployed of Essen, who had announced their intention of proceeding here to await the result of the trial.

Gen. Allen Reveals Plan to Partition Germany

Cleveland, May 3.—French military authorities had a plan for separation of the west bank of the Rhine from the rest of Germany soon after the armistice, Major-General Henry T. Allen, who commanded the American army of occupation, stated in an address here.

He said that at one time the German industrialists of the west favored the scheme, but that it failed when the Germans complained the French had violated the spirit of the Treaty of Versailles.

TRACE AUTOISTS IN KIDNAPING OF BOY

Schenectady, N. Y., May 3.—An arrest was expected today by police seeking Verner Alexanderson, six years old, kidnaped son of E. F. W. Alexanderson, of the General Electric Company and the Radio Corporation of America.

A detective sent to Ogdensburg to trace an automobile in which two men are believed to have abducted the boy, left with police of that city for Alexandria Bay.

The automobile was traced from this city, where two men had stored it nightly in a garage until Monday last, when Verner disappeared.

New York, May 3.—Police today were told by Alexander Marshall of Corona that his mother and sister observed a weeping boy with a man and a woman in Grand Central Station at noon last Monday, and that the child resembled Verner Alexanderson of Schenectady.

BISHOP BLAKE DEFENDS ACTS OF SOVIET

Moscow, May 3 (By the Associated Press).—The church trial of the most Rev. Dr. Tikhon, former Patriarch of the Russian Shurch, began this afternoon. Dr. Tikhon was not present, being still in prison, where he is awaiting civil trial on charges of opposing the Soviet regime.

By International News Service.

Moscow, May 3.—Bishop Edgar Blake, who said he spoke for the Methodists of the United States, today defended the Soviet revolution in a speech before the All-Russian Ecclesiastical Council of the "Living Church."

This is the branch of the orthodox church which supports the Soviets.

"I bring greetings from the Methodists of America," said Bishop Blake. "These distressing days are witnessing one of the most remarkable upheavals in history. But I do not share the fears that civilization is doomed.

"Revolutionary upheavals do not bring death, but larger life inspired by God. It is folly for the church to pronounce against those who are seeking new truths.

"The church must seek the 'great adventure' of free investigation. A church's right to exist is only to serve the people. Only a few challenge the right of the church to exist.

"A great struggle is in progress to abolish oppression.

"Those who have been oppressed and exploited must be given a chance at the best things in life. In this struggle the church cannot stand aloof. Russia is passing through a great social and economic experiment. For the first time in history a great nation and a great people are dedicating themselves to the service of mankind. But unless God assists how can this move succeed?

"Doubtless things have been done in Russia which should not have been done. Also, things were not done which should have been done. The churches should join hands with any government that is trying to raise the masses to the place God intended they should be."

Other speakers condemned Father Tikhon, former patriarch of the orthodox church, who is under arrest, charged with treason.

Sofia—Premier Stambulsky of Bulgaria received a threat of death from the leader of the revolutionaries, if Serbians or Bulgarians are permitted to interfere for the Macedonian irregulars. The Macedonians are seeking autonomy.

Belgrade—Nikola Pachitch remains as Premier of Jugo-Slavia, having formed a cabinet with the same membership as the previous cabinet except for the four ministers who failed of re-election in the recent elections.

Paris—The French newspaper Matin declares the Germans have discovered a deadly new war weapon in Hertizian waves, capable of destroying airplanes, armored cars and tanks from a great distance.

Riga—The Russian's Baltic fleet will visit Memel, Hamburg and Lubek, after manoeuvres, according to word from Moscow today.

GUN CLEW IN DEATH OF YOUTH

Friendship of Young Carter for Teacher Revealed by Tragedy

Kent, Ct., May 3.—Conflicting reports as to what caused the death of Fred Carter, nineteen-year-old scion of a prominent Connecticut family whose body was found in the Housatonic River Monday have caused rapid reversal of opinion among those who knew the youth and his family.

Medical Examiner Barnum performed an autopsy and reported that a gunshot wound near the heart was sufficient to have caused death.

The gun was found in the youth's home miles from the spot where the body was found and three weeks before the body was found. A trail of blood also was plain in the yard leading from the home.

Coroner Samuel A. Herman of Litchfield County witnessed the autopsy and declared the wound appeared to have been made after the gun was thrust downward against the body, but he scouts foul play theories and believes the case purely suicide.

He will examine all possible witnesses. Carter's father is a brother of the late Mrs. Charles B. Andrews of Litchfield, whose husband was chief justice of Connecticut and then Governor.

Carter, according to his friends had long complained of remarks made by young men here about his life at home and for a long time before his disappearance had grown nervous to the breaking point and had threatened to take his life.

The police hope to clear up the mystery by investigating the strained relations that existed between Carter's mother and the foster-sister, Miss Jennie Barker, 32, a school teacher.

Fellow mill-workers of Carter said that when the young man was twitted by his companions about his relations with Miss Barker, he had declared he would rather kill himself than marry her.

Mrs. Carter said that Miss Barker exerted a strange influence over Carter, and said she believed his death due to this situation. Others who knew Carter and the girl said they were devoted to each other, and that Carter said he would marry her but the disparity of their ages.

BULLET VICTIM WONDERS WHO FIRED SHOT

Frank Calabro, twenty-eight years old, is at the Haymarket Relief Hospital with a bullet in his right side.

Both Calabro and the police of the Joy street station are wondering who fired the shot.

Calabro arrived at the relief station with his brother-in-law, Bassie Sansone of No. 78 Green street, West End. Sansone said he found Calabro on his front doorstep when he rushed out to see who was shooting.

Calabro told the police he was leaving the home of his brother-in-law when someone on the street fired the shot. He declared he did not see who did it. He also stated that he had no enemies and had not even had a friendly argument with anyone. Police are investigating.

Angry Woman Plans to Take Wall Paper When She Moves

A certain Jamaica Plain woman has found a new way in which to fight the rent profiteers.

When she moves, in protest at what she regards as an unjust rent raise, she proposes to take the wall paper with her.

"It will at least make the landlord repaper it," she says, explaining she personally papered the tenement when she took possession.

She has consulted with H. E. Ellis, chairman of the City Rent Board, in regard to the legal aspect of her plan of campaign.

NORTH ANDOVER RECTOR'S WIFE FOILS BURGLAR

North Andover, May 3.—"I want to warn you: look out for the first of May" was the decoy used by an unknown man in warning persons at one rectory to divert attention while he robbed another rectory in the near vicinity.

An attempt to break into the rectory of St. Paul's Church was stopped by Mrs. Raymond H. Kendrick, wife of the rector, who saw a man's hand protruding through the broken glass of the door in an effort to force the catch and frightened him away by screaming.

Previously the Rev. James Barret of St. Michael's Roman Catholic Church, near St. Paul's Church, had been warned to be wary of May 1.

Police believe the warning was intended to divert attention from the scene of the planned robbery.

To Wear Thin Waists or Sleeveless Dresses Use Delatone

(Beauty Topics)

With the aid of a delatone paste, it is an easy matter for any woman to remove every trace of hair or fuzz from face, neck and arms. Enough of the powdered delatone and water is mixed into a thick paste and spread on the hairy surface for about 2 minutes, then rubbed off and the skin washed. This completely removes the hair, but to avoid disappointment, get the delatone in an original package and mix fresh.

HUNDREDS OF DOPE SLAVES IN "UPPER CRUST" SAYS JUANITA

KEEP OUT OF POLICE COURTS

Liberal Use of Money Affords Them Protection, Asserts Film Star

By JUANITA HANSEN.

There are two phases of the drug evil.

One might be termed the phase of the underworld. The other might be called the phase of the upper crust.

In the underworld the drug addicts are held in a sodden, miserable bondage, which eventually ties them up with the rings of vice which rule.

PROTECTED BY BRIBERY.

In the upper crust the use of drugs and the opium pipe is more or less of a ceremonial. It begins as a fad, for the stimulation of jaded nerves, and ends in the same dreadful slavery suffered by the underworld victims.

Juanita Hansen

Eight per cent of the statistics available on the subject come from the underworld. Eventually the crooks, the women of the street, the pickpockets, bootleggers and others of that ilk who use drugs, get into courts. They are observed, marked, tagged and finger-printed.

KEEP OUT OF COURTS.

But the addicts who enjoy a higher social status keep out of the police courts. It is only by accident that they get into trouble with the authorities. The facts concerning this phase of the evil are thus kept from the authorities, and the liberal use of money for bribery affords them a more or less complete protection.

Yet it is a fact that hundreds of people who occupy responsible positions, who come from respectable families, who are well supplied with money, are narcotic slaves. Were the actual statistics in this regard made public, it would astonish the nation.

MURDERS DUE TO DOPE.

And now I want to come down to a phase of the situation that has received very little notice from the authorities.

It is a fact that a very large percentage of murders committed without robbery motives are committed by drug addicts. Cocaine particularly inflames its users to homicidal tendencies.

I WANT TO GO ON RECORD AS SAYING THAT EVERY USER OF COCAINE IS A POTENTIAL MURDERER.

And by the same taken anybody who peddles cocaine is a potential accessory before the fact to murder.

That is why only a small percentage of the criminals who break the law because of their addiction to drugs ever get to prison. The real criminals—the salesmen of narcotics who make it possible for these men and women to dull their minds to the point of criminality—frequently go free.

ENDS IN TRAGEDY.

The tragedy of the addicts in the upper strata of society is that what they begin as a fad ends as a tragedy, and that eventually they find themselves outcasts as a result of their habit.

It doesn't make any difference whether you're the colonel's lady or just Judy O'Grady—stay away from that fatal first taste of drugs. Don't delude yourself with the idea that it will be "just something new." It is old—as old as time—this drug evil, as subtle as the serpent, and as deadly.

The body was placed in the Northern Mortuary.

Withdraws Suit

MRS. CONSTANCE S. GRACIE.

APOLOGY ENDS MRS. GRACIE'S WILL FIGHT

Washington, May 3.—Abject apology is on file in the Probate Court here by Mrs. Constance Schack Gracie, who accused her widowed son-in-law, Dunbar S. Adams of Bay Shore, L. I., and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Adams, of stealing a supposed will of her daughter, Mrs. Edith Temple Adams, so the son-in-law could inherit the daughter's $150,000 estate.

With her apology the mother, who is widow of Colonel Archibald Gracie, U. S. A., a victim of the Titanic disaster, abandons all attempts to establish any "lost" will. She withdraws her appeal from adverse decision of a Circuit Court jury.

Dunbar S. Adams was made administrator of his wife's estate, no will being found. Under New York laws he became entitled to all her property.

Mrs. Gracie filed charges that Mr. and Mrs. Adams had rifled the dead woman's desk at the Hotel Savoy, New York City, and taken a will which the mother insisted her daughter had made.

Adams fought his mother-in-law's claim. After Mrs. Gracie's witnesses had been heard Justice Hitz ordered the jury to find that there was no evidence of any will. Then Mrs. Gracie appealed.

In her formal retraction now filed here Mrs. Gracie admits she was unable to bring any reasonable evidence of a will and that she now realizes the great injury she did to her son-in-law and his parents. She admits her accusations were "cruel, bitter, unwarranted, unjustifiable and unreasonable."

WOMEN HELD IN BOMBING GO ON HUNGER STRIKE

Paducah, Ky., May 3.—Mrs. Henriette Wagner and Mrs. Emma Skillian, held in connection with the killing of Mrs. Alfred Warren in a bomb explosion, Monday, are hunger-striking. They have refused food since their arrest, Monday afternoon.

Officials today were checking points in the story of Paul Heimentoler, taxicab driver, that he drove Mrs. Wagner near the scene a short time before the explosion.

He said she reappeared within five minutes and he drove her back to her home. Soon after his arrival there he heard an explosion.

Officials said, following Mrs. Wagner's arrest that evidence of her jealousy over Warren, whom she had raised from a child, was believed to indicate the motive for the crime.

RABBI FINDS LIFE A JOY AT GARLAND FARM

INMATES FORGET SELF IN SERVING FELLOW MEN

Having called upon Charles Garland and his co-workers to discover why any man should give up a million dollars, his family, ease and an assured future to work on a Cape Cod farm, Rabbi Browne found a Communist colony of seven striving to formulate a new system of human relationship. But before presenting the new creed for man's conduct on earth, Rabbi Browne will first present a portrait of the colony's personnel.—EDITOR.

By RABBI LOOIS BROWNE.

Copyright, 1923, by Cosmopolitan News Service.

North Carver, May 3.—What few people today know is that the 30-acre farm no longer belongs to "Barley," as Garland is called by his friends.

Charles Garland.

He deeded it last October to three friends who now hold it as trustees of "the community." Barley is now merely one of the occupants of the place, merely one of the members of the group that is trying to work out in the wastes of Cape Cod a new system of human relationships.

Anybody can come along and temporarily dispossess it or destroy its work or rob its pantry. There would be no resistance offered, save of a passive nature, for all in the "community" are absolute pacifists. They will not harm even the mice that run about the shack.

SEVEN IN "COMMUNITY."

There are seven in the "community" when I was there, all of them rare souls deserving chapters of description and interpretation. For instance there was Alice Edgerton, the girl who first greeted me when I arrived. She is of old Quaker stock and she still "thee's" all whom she addresses. She is bespectacled and serious looking and people would call her plain were it not for the smile that is forever lighting up her face. She seems to glory in work. To hear her singing while she kneads coarse bread dough, to see her tossing aside her waving bobbed hair as she works busily in the strawberry patch or breaks rocks in the field, is to know unmistakably that there is real joy for some people in such work.

Greater love it would be difficult to imagine than the love in the heart of Alice Edgerton. She is kindliness and thoughtfulness and love personified, a creature finding her only pleasure in serving her fellow men.

AN EX-MINISTER.

Then there is William Simpson, whose kinship in life and character to an early Christian disciple is so close that even the dullest must see it. He looks like a laughing, care-free boy, fair haired, and with a smile that reveals such teeth as are rarely seen outside of tooth paste advertisements.

Three years ago he was a Presbyterian minister, but now he has outgrown the Presbyterian Church and even the Christian religion. He believes now that though there be many religions, there is but one religion, that taught in different accents though with the same spirit by the prophets and Buddha and Confucious and Jesus.

So now Bill Simpson is a carpenter, and for two years he has gone up and down the country, toiling with his hands wherever his toil is wanted, preaching on street corners, comforting the poor and distressed and refusing absolutely to take any pay for anything he does. He trusted his fellow men to give him what little food he needed and a bed or floor to sleep on—and his trust was rarely shaken.

NOBLE MAN OF GOD.

He is now building the windmill for the community, working half the day and studying in his cabin the rest of the time, denying himself of every luxury and proving himself a real saint. A young man, thirty, handsome, of good stock, and intelligent, profoundly learned and well able to put his hope and ideas into words. I am impressed that William Simpson is perhaps the noblest man of God I have ever seen.

Then there is young Bettina, an untamed girl of twenty-two, thorough child of nature, who remembers days in a fashionable boarding school and hectic nights at Yale proms, but who now seems superlatively happy tramping about barefoot or in torn sandals. It is strange that she who had none of the religious training of the rest, yet seems to have attained exactly the same attitude toward life.

As she put it to me:

"The only joy on earth is to be found in work that is free and creative."

CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTOR.

Then there is Frank Hennessey, a conscientious objector, who went to prison rather than serve in the army, a young man strikingly alert and keen of mind, who puts in nine or ten hours a day in the field and seems to want no more of life.

And there is old Charles Christian, the grey bearded ex-musician, who came unheralded to the "community" one morning, asking to be taken in as a fellow worker, and who, with his honest toil, and sweet flute playing, has become one of the most beloved in the group. And there are two children from a neighboring farm who eat and work in the "community," seeming to find there a joy and love altogether lacking in their own home.

(To Be Continued).

"Child of Nature"

BETTINA, BAREFOOT BLONDE.

Untamed girl of twenty-two member of Garland's colony, who finds joy in work that is free and creative.

BELGIANS WELCOME ALFONSO AND QUEEN

Brussels, May 3. (By the Associated Press).—King Alfonso and Queen Victoria of Spain arrived here today to visit the Belgian monarchs. They were received by King Albert, Queen Elizabeth and members of the royal household at the station around which an enormous crowd had gathered, giving the Spanish visitors a rousing welcome.

PURNELL PLANS BRANCH IN HOLY LAND

St. Joseph, Mich., May 3.—"King" Benjamin Purnell, whiskered caliph of the House of David, under investigation here, who has been missing since January, is abroad negotiating for the removal of his Israelite colony to Palestine, it was announced by Cora Mooney, one of his viceroys.

The "monarch" had been variously reported as in hiding, in flight and dead.

Detectives have been searching for him for months.

Miss Mooney said Benjamin departed in January for Australia, where there is a branch of the House of David, intending next to visit the Holy Land.

Simultaneously with the issuance of the statement the State was subjecting the allegiance of inmates of the colony to their king to a severe test. Hazel Wade Wuerth, who fled from the colony last year, was brought to St. Joseph from the Indiana town in which she has been living.

Investigating authorities said that she was the only person who had left the house without being forced to sign an affidavit deposing that no immorality was practiced there. Miss Weurth was taken to the grand jury room and there she confronted Harriet Pauschke, once her chum and a reigning favorite with the "king."

MISTAKEN IDENTITY POSTPONES FUNERAL

Arrangements for the funeral today of Mrs. Mary G. Smith, No. 14 Wendell street, South Boston, have been indefinitely postponed following the discovery that Mrs. Smith is not only living, but rapidly gaining strength in City Hospital. Confusion resulted from the death of another woman with the same name.

SAYS FARRAR'S FILM SPOILED MERGER PLAN

New York, May 3.—Geraldine Farrar, when she was in the movies, put the skids under as fine a merger as ever brought the movie trade to the brink of a violation of the Sherman Anti-Trust Law.

W. L. Sherry, vice-president emeritus of the Paramount Pictures Corporation, inspected further by the Federal Trade Commission for symptoms of alleged activities in restraint of trade, so testified in the Engineer's Club.

In 1915, testified Mr. Sherry, he favored merging Paramount, which he then owned, with Famous Players. At that moment Mr. Sherry was worth $800,000. A few months ago, Mr. Sherry mourned, he wasn't worth 15 cents.

All because Geraldine Farrar immortalized her matchless personality in the imperishable movies.

In 1918 Mr. Sherry's tale ran, he was urged by Adolf Zukor to sink $125,000 in "Joan the Woman," a Farrar feature film.

Mr. Sherry declared:

"The picture never grossed over $50,000, if that, and I have been obliged to borrow the $100,000 from the Irving National Bank and had to put up my Famous Players' stock as collateral. I had to dispose of it at a great loss to pay the loan."

Mr. Sherry realized, he said, that they wanted to squeeze him out of the corporation he had once owned. Lately Mr. Sherry accepted a sorely needed $15,000 loan from Famous Players, signing a waiver of all claim against his former property in exchange.

B. F. Selden Quits

Benjamin F. Selden, for two years executive secretary of the South End-Roxbury branch of the Boston Young Men's Christian Association, has resigned. He plans to engage in social work in France.

SUGAR BOYCOTT SUCCESS SEEN AS SALES DROP

The manager of one firm operating 60 branch stores in Greater Boston, admitted a twenty per cent shrinkage of sugar sales in the past few days.

Eugene C. Hultman

An executive of another chain stores company, while declaring sugar sales were still about normal, admitted boycotting was the only way to reduce prices and advised the people not to hoard.

The general manager of still another company, one of the largest in the country, said their customers were being urged by branch managers to purchase sugar sparingly. His firm, he added, hoped to see the sugar market break before long, although it is rather early for the effects of the boycott to show.

MARKET WAVERS.

Although the price of sugar remained the same, the sugar exchange in New York, controlled by banks and speculators, was reported to have wavered perceptibly.

Mrs. Arthur G. Rotch.

Eugene C. Hultman, chairman of the Committee on the Necessaries of Life, who has returned from New York, emphasized the statement that the only way to bring down the price of a commodity is to stop using it.

"The price of sugar at present," he said, "is based upon what the consumer is willing to pay for it. The householder consumes directly about 70 per cent. of the sugar distributed in the United States. They have, therefore, in their own hands, a most effective weapon with which to protect themselves. On account of the ample production of sugar, the consumer can bring about a reduction in price by curtailing purchases and consumption, as an artificial price cannot be long maintained if the demand does not absorb the stocks in the hands of producers and speculators."

Mr. Hultman stated that his recent report on sugar had been introduced as evidence in the government's proceedings to dissolve the sugar exchange in New York.

EXPORTS LESS.

He pointed out that this report contained testimony from sugar refiners to the effect that exports to Europe this year had fallen off. Another significant feature was the statement that all sugar distributed is referred to by sugar men as having been consumed, when as a matter of fact it might be in storage.

The Commission has received many letters from Massachusetts dealers, large users of refined sugar and wax paper manufacturers, stating that the high price of sugar has injured their business. These statements are regarded as evidence that the sugar exchange in New York, by fixing prices, is acting in restraint of interstate commerce.

Among the latest of the prominent women to join the boycott was Mrs. Florida R. Ridley, executive secretary of the League of Women for Community Service.

"I certainly will indorse the boycott," said Mrs. Ridley. "Furthermore, I will put it up to the members of the league at a meeting tonight, and I am confident that they will all join the movement."

LEAGUE TAKES STAND.

Mrs. Arthur G. Rotch, president of the Consumers' League of Massachusetts, not only indorsed the boycott, but obtained the adoption of the following resolution by the executive committee of her organization:

"Resolved, That the executive committee of the Consumers' League deplore the manipulation of the market which apparently has caused the excessive price of sugar, and distinctly favors restricting buying by consumers as perhaps their only means of expressing their dissatisfaction at conditions and effecting an improvement."

In addition, Mrs. Rotch stated she would take the movement up at a board meeting of the League of Women Voters today.

Mayor Richard J. Kinsella of Hartford, Conn., has issued a proclamation, similar to those of Mayor Hylan of New York and Mayor Curley of Boston, calling a sugar strike in Hartford.

Four more Governors of States have endorsed the countrywide boycott inaugurated by the Hearst newspapers, and Governor Lee M. Russell of Mississippi has asked President Harding to publicly advocate restriction of sugar use.

POSSIBLY the perfection of the Rockefeller organization makes gasoline and oil dearer than they might be. Possibly, also, that same perfect organization, which keeps down little gentlemen who would be extortionate, actually reduces the price. You can't tell.

In any case, Assyrians ought not to object to the Rockefellers.

GERMANY HAS OFFERED to the Allies, which means to France, $7,500,000,000 gold. France probably will refuse. England is hopeful.

Germany expects to pay part of the money by borrowing it from the United States, and asks for a moratorium on part of the rest. And that's that situation. Perhaps if we were pushed into the World Court, with several votes against our one, that august tribunal would decide that we must lend money to pay France—because we neglected our duty early in the war, or for some other "reason."

Now another resident, Mrs. Rogers, of 108 Falcon St., East Boston, writes: "I still have Dr. True's Elixir, for it surely benefits me; I have a good appetite and eat everything that I want. 'BEAUTY PRIZE' HERRICK HELD AS MASHER

Washington, May 3.—Former Representative Manuel Herrick of Oklahoma was arrested here on a technical charge of disorderly conduct. According to the police Herrick accosted a young woman on New York avenue.

The former Congressman was taken to headquarters in a patrol wagon. When searched, the police found, they say, a list of fifty Washington girls, with a notation following each name.

When Herrick's case was called in police court, the district attorney's office announced that a number of women had asked for permission to testify against the prisoner. Herrick appeared to conduct his own defence, but after a consultation the hearing was postponed until tomorrow.

Rome.—It is learned that Pope Pius has decided to hold a consistory soon, but is not yet sure whether he will create any new cardinals. Vatican circles assert no American will be given the red hat at the forthcoming consistory. Any new cardinals, it is believed, will be Italians.

HUB RED CROSS SEEKING THREE MISSING MEN

Three missing men, two of them wounded World War veterans, are being sought in Boston through the agency of the American Red Cross, which has been appealed to by relatives in Constantinople, Chattanooga, Tenn., and Bennington, Vt.

Isaac C. Mathers, thirty-one years old, of Bennington, Vt., gassed and shell-shocked World War veteran, served overseas with Battery D, 15th Field Artillery. He has been missing since January, 1920, and is believed to be in Boston. He is 6 feet tall and has brown eyes and brown hair. Inquiry is made by a sister in Bennington.

Roy M. Howard of Chattanooga, Tenn., wounded in action overseas, absented himself from a hospital in North Dakota on March 31, 1922. His service was with the Motor Transportation Corps. He is described as being 5 feet 9 inches tall, weighing 180 pounds, and having dark hair and eyes. His right eyetooth is bridged.

Guirshi Branopolsky, a native of Constantinople, is sought by a brother in Constantinople. He is believed to have come to Boston about twenty-six years ago, and to have become the proprietor of a tin shop.

FOCH WARNS POLES OF "JEALOUS RIVALS"

Warsaw, May 3.—A warning that "jealous rivals" are seeking Poland's downfall was sounded by Marshal Foch of France in a speech today. "Poland must be retained by her solidarity," he said. "The people must work harmoniously to defend it against jealous rivals who seek Poland's downfall."

"MOTORING IN A MOHAWK'

Marsters, Inc., will leave the Copley Plaza Hotel at 10:00 A. M., 2:00 P. M. and 5:00 P. M. for demonstration trips through the Park System and suburbs. RUTHERNBERG FACES 10 YEARS IN PRISON

St. Joseph, Mich., May 3 (By the Associated Press). — Charles E. Ruthernberg is the first man convicted under the Michigan anti-syndicalism law.

After deliberating four hours and fifty minutes a jury returned a verdict of guilty in his trial as a result of the raid on the Communist party convention, near Bridgman, last August.

Sentence will be pronounced June 4, Ruthernberg's attorney having until then to prepare an appeal. The maximum penalty Ruthernberg faces is ten years in prison, a $5,000 fine, or both.

His trial followed that of William Z. Foster of Chicago, on the same charge. The Foster jury was dismissed after 35 hours' deliberation, when it was deadlocked.

ICE BLOCKADE IN NEWFOUNDLAND HINDERS VOTING

St. John's, N. F., May 3.—Residents along the coast of Newfoundland, the only settled part of the island, struggled to the polls today in the midst of the Spring breakup to vote for a new House of Assembly for the colony.

Travel difficulties caused by icebound harbors along the coast and deep snow in the interior made it unlikely that the complete result of the election would be known for some days.

In one electoral district, that of Burgeo, ballot boxes have not been delivered to all polling stations. A steamer carrying the boxes to outlying settlements was frozen in until it was too late to make the distribution. The election will be incomplete, and should either Government or Opposition party have a narrow majority a bye-election will be ordered.

The Open Door

Slowly the door swings open. Beyond are broad steps warm in the morning sun. The pathway from the steps starts wide and clear. It stretches as far as the eye can see. With shadows dappling the path here and there, the road is seen to end at a palace of dreams, radiant in sunshine.

Pressing eagerly through the door are the boys and girls who are leaving schools and colleges to travel toward their palace of dreams.

Everyone wishes them well. Everyone presses their hands and wishes them godspeed.

To those you know personally you probably wish to give a remembrance of the day when they pass through the open door. We have a variety of gifts to suggest, suited to the boy or girl who will receive them, and governed by the price you wish to pay.

For boys, a watch, cuff-links, a pen or pencil, a John Brumfit pipe, a traveling bag. For girls, a pin, bracelet, watch, purse, mesh bag, a ring, toilet silver. Youth loves "things," and is just beginning to acquire them, so your latitude of choice is wide.

Smart Dinners Precede Charity Ball Tomorrow, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

TO judge by the brisk way in which subscriptions are being taken up for tomorrow night's ball at Buckingham Hall, the coffers of the Cambridge Hospital will be considerably increased.

A number of prominent matrons are giving dinners preceding the affair, for which a host of fashionable are turning out. Mrs. Joseph Thorp has had charge of the sale of boxes, some of which have been taken by Mesdames Godfrey Cabot, Richard Dana, Robert Minot, Alvin Sortwell and William Thayer. A smart group of matrons are listed as sponsors for the affair, for which, by the way, John Ames is doing the decorations.

ALSO tomorrow night comes the much-talked-of Aviation Ball, promising to draw a brilliant throng to the Copley-Plaza. Besides the older group in charge—Mesdames Russell S. Codman, G. Richmond Fearing, William A. Gaston and George S. Mandell as well as Messrs. Charles R. Codman and Gardiner Fiske—there's a fairly large junior committee working to make the ball come off with "flying" colors. A few of those on the latter committee include Mrs. Bob Herrick, Jr., Mrs. Lothrop M. Weld, Mrs. E. Preble Motley, Jr., as well as the Misses Katharine Abbott, Andrea and Rosamond Adie, Margot Amory, Olivia James and Ella Snelling.

There is, of course, the usual distinguished list of patronesses, replete with such names as Mesdames Charles F. Aldrich, Charles F. Ayer, S. Parker Bremer, Charlie Choate, 3rd, James J. Cabot, Quincy A. Shaw, Jr., and Bayard Thayer.

MRS. JOHN CASWELL and pretty daughter Elizabeth—more familiarly knows as "Sister"—are already ensconsed at "Round Plain Farm," their country place at Beverly Farms.

Within the past six months the Caswells have been travelling about quite a bit. Early in December they sailed for the Mediterranean, returning to this country a few months later and then going immediately to Palm Beach, where they visited with friends before coming on to Boston.

Usually Harold S. ("Mike") Vanderbilt leases Round Plain Farm for the mid-Summer months, and it is in the stables of this estate that sport-loving "Eleo" Sears keeps her favorite mounts.

At present Miss Sears is in France, planning to take part in the tennis matches at Wimbledon, England, before returning to these shores.

ONE of the smart set's cleverest and most vivacious young women is Mrs. A. Lynde Cochrane, who played the role of "Princess Sonia" in the recent Vincent Club show and quite captivated the audience when she sang the "Arctic Blues."

One of the leading lights of the Vincent Club show, presented last week, was Mrs. A. Lynde Cochrane, a petite blonde, who played the role of Russian princess in exile. Photo Copyright by Bachrach.

Curley and the Mayors of 28 other Massachusetts cities leave tonight on the Federal express for Washington, where memorial trees will be planted, one for the State and one for each of the cities of Massachusetts. Portland, May 3.—Supreme Court Justice Albert M. Spear, grand master of the Masons of Maine, speaking before the delegates to the 104th annual Masonic convention, vigorously condemned the Ku Klux Klan.

conscious

Some people are so self-conscious that they are never able to put their best foot forward.

YOU probably know people like that. Maybe this happens to be your own failing. Then you know how uncomfortable such a feeling can make you.

Self-conscious persons are usually uneasy about how they appear—whether their clothes may or may not be just right. And just what impression they are making with others.

Yet so many people of this kind make the unfortunate mistake of neglecting the one thing that is probably more in evidence every time they speak than really anything else about them—their teeth.

If your teeth are dull, stained or unkempt looking, people instantly notice it and your stock goes down. Unclean teeth immediately brand you as a careless, unfastidious person.

Only the right dentifrice—consistently used—will protect you against such criticism. Listerine Tooth Paste cleans teeth a new way. The first tube you buy (25 cents) or the free sample (see coupon) will prove this to you.

You will notice the improvement even in the first few days. And, moreover, just as Listerine is the safe antiseptic, so Listerine Tooth Paste is the safe dentifrice. It cleans yet it cannot injure the enamel.

What are your teeth saying about you today?

U. S. BACKING OF CHESTER DEAL IS LIMITED

Lausanne, May 3.—(By the Associated Press)—Joseph C. Grew, head of the American delegation at the Lausanne conference, has expressed to General Pelle, leader of the French delegates, the opinion that when all the facts about the Chester concession become known the difficulties arising from the grant will be found to have solved themselves.

Minister Grew emphasized that the United States, in maintaining its traditional policy of the open door, deems that that policy applies to other nations as well as to herself.

Conference circles interpreted Mr. Grew's assertions as a reaffirmation of America's intention not to support any part of the Chester grant which may be found to conflict with a prior and legitimately obtained French concession for the construction of a railroad in Anatolia.

NEARING GOAL IN NON-STOP FLIGHT

Kansas City, Mo., May 3 (By the Associated Press).—The monoplane T-2, in which Lieutenants Oakley G. Kelly and John A. MacReady are attempting a non-stop transcontinental flight, early today presumably is over New Mexico facing the hardest part of the battle from Hempstead, N. Y., to San Diego, Cal., the home station.

After the huge plane flew low over Kansas City at midnight last night, approximately 1,100 miles in an air line from its point of taking off, authentic trace of it was lost through the hours of darkness.

That part of the voyage had been made in something less than eleven hours, a speed of approximately 100 miles an hour. That same rate of progress should bring the next report from the T-2 from some point in the sparsely settled districts of New Mexico or Arizona.

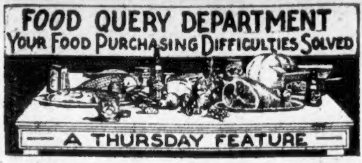
FOOD QUERY DEPARTMENT

YOUR FOOD PURCHASING DIFFICULTIES SOLVED



— A THURSDAY FEATURE —

Are you at a loss as to where you can secure some particular brand or kind of foodstuffs? If so, write the Boston American Food Query Editor. We will answer your inquiry in these columns as quickly as possible.

Food Query Editor—I would like to know whether you think it is better to buy bacon already sliced or buy it by the piece and slice it whenever you want it. There are five in my family, and we are all great lovers of bacon.

MRS. D. J. KELLEY.

Winthrop, Mass.

I think it is better to buy bacon by the piece and slice it as you want it. First of all, because it is more economical buying this way; second, because the bacon keeps its flavor, and, third, it will keep longer in the piece. Of course, it is essential to have a good sharp knife in the house. This is something very few households possess. It is also a good idea to have your bacon good and firm, as it will slice much better, so it is naturally essential to keep same in a good cool ice box.

Food Query Editor—I have recently come from New York to live in Boston. Will you please tell me where I can purchase Yuban coffee? Thanking you in advance, I am MRS. W. S. MOORE.

No. 174 Winthrop road, Brookline, Mass.

You can purchase the Yuban brand coffee at any of the S. S. Pierce stores. If it is not convenient for you to purchase same from the above-mentioned stores you can have same sent direct by parcel post from Arbuckle Brothers, No. 71 Water street, New York, N. Y., on the basis of 48 cents per pound prepaid.

Food Query Editor—My husband has been telling me of late a lot about a Black Hawk brand of bacon, but he could not tell me just where I could purchase same. Could you help me out on this matter? He claims that this is a dried cure bacon, and this, I understand, is a very fine way of preparing same, and I would like to try it. MRS. MARY CASEY.

Roxbury, Mass.

Black Hawk brand of bacon is put up by the Rath Packing Company of Waterloo, Ia., and is a dried cure bacon. You can purchase this bacon at any of the Arthur E. Dorr stores, LaGrange Street Market, No. 11 LaGrange street; Upham's Corner Market, Upham's Corner, Dorchester.

Food Query Editor—A friend of mine told me to be sure and buy a Horse Shoe brand of ham for luck, but I think she is fooling about this. Is there such a brand as Horse Shoe brand, and, if so, where can I buy it?

MRS. CATHERINE CAWLEY.

Belvista road, Allston, Mass.

There is a Horse Shoe brand of hams put up by Handschumacher & Co., No. 25 John street, Boston, and you can secure same from the above concern, as they sell both wholesale and retail.

Food Query Editor—It seems foolish for me to be writing at this season asking you where I can secure a brand of canned asparagus when there is so much fresh grass in the market, but I assure you that I am much better pleased with a good canned asparagus than the fresh goods. I find it runs very much more even. I would, therefore, like to know if it is possible for me to buy Cape Cod brand of asparagus in Boston. I have had exceptional good luck with this brand. MRS. M. DOLLIBIER.

Fayette St., Newton, Mass.

You can secure the Cape Cod brand of asparagus in cans at any of the E. E. Gray Co. stores.

Food Query Editor—Do you know where I can buy Mouquin's Berri-Fruit? This is a very delicious blend of fruits and it is lovely for flavoring desserts such as pudding sauces and lots of other things. The bottle I just finished I purchased somewhere near the North Station one day as I was coming in from Gloucester. I have looked several times for the place of late but have not been able to locate it. I know it is somewhere near the North Station.

MRS. EDWARD FELLOWS.

Pine Grove Rd., Newton Lower Falls, Mass.

H. Strater & Sons at 74 Sudbury St., Boston, are the New England agents for the full line of Mouquin's Imported beverages. These people sell both wholesale and retail.

Food Query Editor—My mother is visiting us. She is from the country and knows what is good, especially in the way of household goods. She claims that when she lived in the city she bought an old-fashioned soap by the name of Dobbins. I personally have never heard of it. I wonder if you have, and if so where I can purchase it.

MRS. J. W. LARKINS.

Tiptop St., Cambridge, Mass.

You can purchase the old-fashioned Dobbins soap at any of the Cobb, Bates & Yerxa stores.

Food Query Editor—Have you ever heard of Weddle's Russian Tea? It has a wonderful flavor and is put up in sealed packages. I have tried high and low around Boston and in my neighborhood, but I do not seem to find anybody who has ever heard of it, let alone sell it. I had given up hopes of finding same when I happened to see your column. I do hope that you will be able to help me out.

MRS. WM. FISCHER.

340 Beacon St., Boston, Mass.

The John Gilbert, Jr., Co., 426 Boylston St., Boston, handle a Weddle's Russian Caravan Tea that is put up in sealed packages. Most likely this is the tea you are looking for.

Food Query Editor—I would like to buy the real old-fashioned imported Irish Oatmeal. I do not want this stuff they claim is just as good. I have tried a lot of these substitutes, but they are not as good or anywhere near as good. I am willing to pay the price, but want the real thing. Please let me know through your valuable column where I can get same.

MRS. B. ROBBINSON.

Broadway, Somerville, Mass.

You can purchase McCann's Imported Irish Oatmeal, put up in five pound and two pound tins, at any of the S. S. Pierce stores, also at John Gilbert, Jr., Co., 426 Boylston St., Boston.

BISHOP RAPS DISOWNING OF CHURCH CREED

Philadelphia, May 3.—Vigorous defense of the church's creed and denunciation of clergymen who disown or reject it, featured an address by Bishop Philip M. Rhinelander before the Protestant Episcopal Diocesan Convention of Pennsylvania.

The bishop, who has resigned because of ill health, declared that Liberalism which robs folks of their faith deserved a harsher name than "thief."

"Some priests in our communion," he said, "are asking us to simplify the creed by leaving out the Virgin birth, the atonement and the resurrection. These articles should present no difficulty whatever. If Jesus Christ was not the begotten son of God, then a Virgin birth and a risen body are empty, useless and void. The creed of the church stands or falls as one inseparable whole. If the church loses part of the creed, it loses its Lord, who is the giver of its life.

"Be guard against Liberalism."

that's a great taste!

ONE green olive is a tantalizing morsel. The salty tang just makes you hungry for more.

Did you know that this plump, meaty fruit makes delicious sandwiches? In salads, too, they are delightful. Or halve them for garnishing. Green olives are so handy for teas and luncheons, and as an appetizer at dinner, that you should keep a bottle or two always in the house. Buy them to-day.

When the Doctor chooses his own milk supply he brings into play a most critical judgment which years of scientific training have matured. He knows the necessity for sturdy cows, clean barns and sterile utensils—he knows the advantage of laboratory analysis for cleanliness, purity and safety — the doctor knows milk quality.

It is significant that physicians of Greater Boston specify

WAITER IS MADE MILLIONAIRE BY WOOD

George M. Wallace, in 1917 a waiter at the Algonquin Club, with his wife, is the guest of William M. Wood, head of the American Woolen Company, at the Ritz Hotel in London, on his way to Scotland, his old home.

He goes back a millionaire after twelve years in America, during the last five of which he has become the right hand man of Mr. Wood and agent of the Riverina Mills in Medford.

Wallace waited on the table occupied by Mr. Wood when he dined at the Algonquin Club. The mill man liked the way he went about his work and offered him a job with the American Woolen Company.

He accepted, made the most of his opportunities, and when in 1920 Mr. Wood developed Shawsheen Village, he placed Wallace in charge of the work.

The latter has supervised all the construction work and at present is second only to Mr. Woods in the building and management of this model community.

He is now thirty-seven years old, and has two boys. He was born in Scotland and accompanied Mr. Wood abroad as his guest.

TENANTS GET HOUSES IN LANDLORD'S WILL

Nashua, N. H., May 3.—As unusual as the life he lived was the disposition of the $50,000 estate of the late James E. Humphrey in the will of the local lumber dealer filed in Probate Court.

Practically all of his property was left to his tenants and his personal effects and small cash bequests were left to his friends. His two nephews, Edwin F. Colburn of Pepperell and Charles Colburn of this city, were left only small amounts of money. Emma Bennett of Amherst, N. H., got the largest cash bequest—$2,000, and also the residue.

HEEL PRINT OF WOMAN CLUE IN MURDER

Aurora, Ill., May 3.—Finding of a large gray coat button and the imprint of a woman's French heel in the blood-spattered greenhouse of Warren J. Lincoln, horticulturist, and distant relative of Abraham Lincoln, redoubled the efforts of Kane County authorities to find a woman who, it is believed, can explain the mysterious disappearance of Lincoln, believed murdered or kidnaped.

The heelprints strengthened the belief that the floriculturist was clubbed to death and his body dragged and buried beneath his flowers. Marie Klein, child housekeeper for Lincoln, identified the button as one similar to those on Mrs. Lina Lincoln's coat, which vanished from the house on Sunday.

Motive for the kidnapping or murder—and bloodstains indicate it was murder despite the fact no one has been able to find the body of Lincoln—is ascribed to either the assertion of Lincoln to his son that he had "enough" on a relative "to convict him of murder" or his action for divorce which was to have been heard in Geneva, Ill.

Mrs. Lincoln and her brother, Byron Shoup, have been missing since Sunday when Lincoln's disappearance was discovered. Chicago police have been asked to look for them.

GIRL OF 18 JILTS YOUTH AT ALTAR

Franklin, N. H., May 3.—Bernice Breconier, eighteen years old, exercised a woman's privilege and changed her mind about marrying Earl Cole at the eleventh hour. As a result there was a disappointed gathering of friends at the church where the wedding was set to occur.

The expectant bridegroom, twenty-one years old, is now in Boston without a bride. What caused the jilting of her sweetheart by the girl is not known.

STORIES OF BOSTON TOWN

By Jo Swerling

FOR WEEKS PAUL PAPPAS HAS LINGERED IN THE SHADOW of the electric chair. The people of the State have taken an unusual interest in the case. What is the psychological reason for this interest? Is it because they don't want to see Pappas executed? Or because they do want to see the electric chair die?

PAPPAS

The cat plays with the mouse. It lets the mouse escape from the cruel jaws. The mouse starts to creep away. It is too dazed by the grip of the cat's teeth to run. It can only crawl. After it has gone a few inches, the cat's paw stretches forth. The claws grip the skin of the victim. The cat rolls the mouse over. It looks like play. But after a while, its lust sharpened by the taste of blood, tired of the play, the teeth of the cat close around the throat of the mouse. There is the crunching of tiny bones . . . the cat has dined.

The law is playing with Paul Pappas. The jaw of the law is the death cell in the prison at Charlestown. Pappas went into that cell. Then he was taken out, given a glimpse of the sun, permitted to see other men who were free. Then the arm of the law reached out and Pappas went back into the narrow little house of death. Again he was permitted to come out. Another glimpse of the sun . . . and again he went back in the death cell. And now he is out a third time.

When Pappas first was led into the death cell, he won the admiration of the warden, the clergymen who came to see him, the friends and relatives, the lawyers, the trusties who brought him food by the courage he displayed. He knew he was doomed to die. He looked death in the face serenly. He was ready.

Today he is a trembling, pallid, terribly frightened boy. His morale is broken. He is afraid. Three times they have let him crawl away into the sunlight, and thrice he came back into the jaw of the law. The electric chair is the teeth.

Pappas is the big story today. The people are interested. They read the bulletins in the case eagerly. Why are they so concerned?

Visualize Themselves in Pappas' Place

It is because they visualize themselves in Pappas' place. They are glad they are not the mouse with which the cat plays.

The case itself is uninteresting. An overgrown Greek boy whose brain has not kept pace in growth with his body is convicted of killing [illegible] in a shabby part of town, a "flop" for foreigners. It was not a crime of passion. There was no great love interest, no consuming jealousy, no eternal triangle. It was just one of those things.

The people weren't interested in Paul Pappas when he was on trial for the murder. They weren't interested when he was taken into the death cell. They are interested now because three times he has come out of that cell.

The mouse that the cat plays with is not popular. Housewives regard it as a nuisance. The cat does a public service by killing the mouse—ridding the household of a pest. And the cat is not consciously cruel when it plays with the mouse. The cat teases the mouse before it kills the mouse, because that is what the cat's ancestors were accustomed to do with their prey back to the days when all cats were tigers.

Relic of Days of Court Torture

The law is not consciously cruel when it dangles freedom before the eyes of the unlettered, ignorant Greek youth in Charlestown prison, and then pronounces his doom. It is what courts have been doing for centuries, back to the days when they used to torture prisoners to make them confess, and sometimes even try them by torture.

People want Pappas to cheat the jaws of the law. The interest of the public in the Pappas case is not an interest in an individual condemned to die. It is an interest in the process of law whereby the State commits the same crime for which the prisoner was condemned.

The electric chair and the scaffold are relics of the days when cats were tigers.

Pappas has been granted a stay of execution. Again the glimpse of sunlight. Again the tantalizing prospect of possible freedom.

Pappas may not die. But it doesn't matter whether he's executed or not. The important issue is this:

When will the electric chair die in this State?

WARD CASE PROBE HALTED FOR 5 DAYS

Albany, N. Y., May 3.—A five-days stay from the Supreme Court order directing the surrender to Attorney-General Sherman of the Ward "blackmail" cablegrams, granted to attorneys for Walter S. Ward and the Western Union Telegraph Company by the appellate division, effectively halted the State's investigation of the slaying of Clarence Peters of Haverhill, Mass., until Tuesday, when the appeal from the court order will be heard. The State's attorneys will move the scene of their inquiry to New York, and the slaying will be re-enacted on the scene of the crime.

SAVES GIRL TRAPPED IN SUBWAY

Foot Caught in Door as Train Moves, She Was Dragged Along the Platform

Quick thinking and prompt action by Randolph W. Powell of No. 7 Craigie circle, Cambridge, saved the life of Miss Catherine Lovett of No. 45 Sacramento road, Cambridge, today, when the door of a subway train car closed on the young woman's foot and the train started, dragging her along the platform.

Miss Lovett tried to enter the car as the door was closing but the door slammed against her ankle, leaving her outside. The train started and she was thrown off her balance, screaming with fright. Powell, [illegible] strong for the bell rope, gave a vigorous [illegible]. The motorman [illegible] ped the train in time to save Miss Lovett from being dragged to death.

Due to Powell's quick action Miss Lovett suffered only a wrenched ankle and she limped into the train and continued to Boston.

HUB JAIL BREAKER HELD IN ROCHESTER

Boston police expect to deal with Harry Brewster, auto thief, who escaped from the Charles street jail, after he faces charges for which he has been arrested in Rochester, N. Y. Brewster, a man with many aliases, formerly of Malden, scaled the 20-foot wall of the Boston jail by climbing a rope left hanging by workmen. He was captured in New York in 1921 after a thrilling chase and gun battle and later made a second escape by jumping from an auto while heavily handcuffed and guarded.

THEATRE GONE IN FLOOD

Ellsworth, Me., Sees Hope for Property As Water Begins to Recede

Ellsworth, Me., May 3.—Ellsworth people after a night of intense excitement found a ray of hope today in the receding water, the hope that the main section of the big Bangor Railway and Electric Company's storage dam might hold and the railroad and highway bridge from the Ellsworth Falls section into the city were still intact.

The damage from the flood conditions was so increased by last night's disaster that it is now estimated at $1,000,000.

The Dago Theatre [illegible] the storage [illegible] house of the Hancock County Farmers' Union, the plant of the foundry [illegible] works and about twenty big yachts and a number of smaller craft were swept away.

About twenty families vacated their houses on Central and Sterling streets and there will be considerable property damage in that section of the city where houses were under [illegible].

If the water continues to recede and the big dam holds the prospects for further serious damage will be eliminated.

FIRE ALARM WARNING.

When the rapid rise of the waters of the river [illegible] fire alarm was sounded [illegible] to be ready to leave.

Motor trucks [illegible] horse-drawn vehicles and even wheel barrows and [illegible] were pressed into service to carry household [illegible] from [illegible] and [illegible] stores. The business section was abandoned. The street lights went out and the workers had only lanterns to guide them.

At midnight the steel highway bridge was swept off its piers. It was carried some distance down stream where it sank.

Homes of people living on the highlands were thrown open to those whose homes were in the path of the flood. [illegible] found shelter in tents which were [illegible] up.

TINKHAM SCORES PROHIBITION

London, May 3. (By International News Service).—Congressman George Holden Tinkham of Massachusetts, in an interview here today, made a bitter attack upon American prohibition. "Prohibition in the United States has destroyed national morality," said the Congressman. [illegible] by introducing [illegible] Prohibition [illegible] tively with the administration of all justice.

"Civil order has not been promoted. There is no reduction in murder, lynchings or the major crimes. On the contrary, statistics disclose there has been increase in crime. Much of the trouble with labor in the United States can be traced to resentment over prohibition."

Congressman Tinkham will sail for Africa tomorrow.

CHARGE WIFE HAD WINTHROP RIVAL

William D. Kennedy of Undine street, Winthrop, was delivered by East Boston court today to a [illegible] officer to be taken [illegible] and face charges of desertion made by his wife. It is alleged that he left his family four years ago, came here and met a Maine girl named Lenore Thomas.

According to the police, Kennedy and the Thomas girl have been living on Undine street.

SEVEN TRAPPED.

Two firemen were injured and seven others trapped on a fire escape on the fourth floor with flames leaping all about them, escaped scorched after comrades risked their lives to raise ladders. Two aided [illegible] to safety.

The injured were:

Captain Daniel Hurley, Rescue Company No. 1, taken to Relief Hospital, leg broken. Hurley was injured in peanut factory fire in [illegible] weeks ago.

Engineman Thomas Wrenn, Engine 25, cut by falling slate.

Mark Skeffington, of the crew of Engine Company No. [illegible], was overcome by smoke. He is at the Haymarket Relief Station. Skeffington's home is at No. 30 Nashua street.

William Carroll, No. 98 Warren street, Charlestown, of Engine No. [illegible], Salem street, overcome by smoke, Relief Hospital.

Engine 8 from Fort Hill square, one of the first pieces of apparatus to arrive, took [illegible] on the [illegible] street side of the building which extends through to No. 122 Central street.

Lieutenant Thomas Flannigan, together with Michael J. Foley, William Brooks, James M. Kenndrew, Frank A. Allen and Stephen King raced up the fire escape to the fourth floor dragging a hose with them. Flames began to pour from the floors below and the smoke hid the threatened men from [illegible] when men of Ladder 8 went to their rescue.

The fire escapes below were by this time red hot, cutting off escape. As ladders were finally raised flames were shooting from every floor and Chief Taber ordered every man from the building.

The Webster Thomas Company estimates its damage at nearly $400,000. The H. A. Johnson Company, wholesale grocers next door, suffered heavy water damage. [illegible] Johnson of Carver road, Newton, president of the company, estimates that firm's loss at $100,000. The Emerson Company, seeds and plants, also occupying an adjoining building, suffered heavy loss. All were covered by insurance.

KILLS 2 FOR 'GOOD OF HUMANITY'

Saginaw, Mich., May 3 (By International News Service).—An alienist commission, it was announced today, will examine Gideon Cardinal, thirty-six, former Pontiac insane asylum inmate, who hacked to death with a hatchet Clement Shovar, sixty-five, and his wife, Grace, fifty-two, a neighbor couple.

Cardinal declares he killed them "for the good of humanity," and "because their eyes were terrible," according to the prosecutor.

He was released from the asylum as harmless. Arrested at his home where he had returned and gone to bed following the double murder, Cardinal said he decided to kill the couple when he saw Shovar, a hunchback, pass the house on his way home from work. He said he brooded over the fancied dangers to humanity represented by the Shovars.

DECLARE IN LAWRENCE FOR STRIKE

Eastern Massachusetts Employes to Decide Whether to Accept Arbitration

Unions in every division of the Eastern Massachusetts Street Railway system, comprising 1,800 employes, are voting on the question whether to arbitrate their demands for a wage increase of about 30 per cent, and other concessions.

To date, it was said today, only the Lawrence local, numbering 250 men, has voted to strike. They have [illegible] for the walkout, but have arranged a meeting [illegible] for final consideration.

Officials of the road said they did not expect a strike, and that they were willing to submit to arbitration [illegible] except [illegible] to have [illegible] from employes in arrears.

FAVOR WAGE INCREASE.

The [illegible] declared there should be a wage increase if the cost of living has increased since the last adjustment in 1920 and that arbitration should be on that basis.

[illegible] employes are now being paid [illegible] cents an hour for work on [illegible] and [illegible] cents an hour for operating one-man cars [illegible] per cent [illegible]. They demand an increase to 58 cents an hour [illegible] rate with [illegible] cents [illegible] more for one-man car operation.

[illegible]

Demands besides those for wages [illegible] of days [illegible] an eight-hour day and [illegible] of seniority among [illegible] and other non-uniformed men.

COUNTER PROPOSALS.

The company's conter proposals on these points are for arbitration of both with the statement that it is proposed to [illegible] seniority also [illegible].

The [illegible] conference board of the system is [illegible] in session in Boston today, with International Vice President J. H. Reardon sitting [illegible]. Mr. Reardon has been [illegible] and has conferred also with officials of the company.

Spokesmen for the road said today they understood the strike vote taken at Lawrence last night to be unsanctioned, and to be a violation of the union constitution in that it was not preceded by certain required formalities.

Members of the joint conference board, on the other hand, asserted that it was a valid vote to the best of their knowledge and belief.

MAINE GOVERNOR OUT FOR SUGAR BOYCOTT

Augusta, Me., May 3.—Governor [illegible] asked the citizens of the State to refuse to buy sugar "at unreasonable prices." The Governor pointed out that the sugar men are looking ahead to the canning season and are evidently planning to take advantage of the approaching season to still further boost the price of sugar.

Gov. Baxter

"The only effective way to curb profiteering in necessities is for the people themselves to refrain from using the articles that have been 'cornered' by the profiteers," said the Governor.

This contest has aroused more interest than any wrestling match between light heavyweights that has been staged in this city in many months. The fact that Kotsonaros and Kilonis are both Greeks [illegible] is what has stirred up the [illegible]

Kotsonaros recently had [illegible] of George Calza, Italian champion, for more than two hours [illegible] threw Kotsonaros out of the ring. The Greek was so badly injured [illegible] he was unable to continue

* * *

There is little question in the mind of this writer that Kotsonaros would have won if Calza had not resorted to unfair methods.

Kotsonaros has posted $1,000 with the Boston American for a return bout with Calza. If the latter does not accept his challenge, Kotsonaros says Renato Gardini, whom he terms the conversational champion, may have a bout. The Greek doesn't hesitate in declaring he would be able to throw Gardini twice within an hour.

Kilonis May Upset Plans of Kotsonaros

Kilonis may upset Kotsonaros plans. There are many fans who [illegible] will enable him to weaken Kotsonaros and then surge to victory.

Shevlin and Shade to Quarrel Again

It is only a question [illegible] Ellie Shevlin, New England welterweight champion [illegible] Shade of [illegible]

Shevlin won the first bout, while Shade grabbed the verdict in the second meeting. Shevlin seems to think he would have knocked Shade out in the seventh round of their last tussle if the boxers had not gone through the ropes during a wild mixup. The toss from the ring weakened Shevlin, with the result he was not able to do himself justice during the closing sessions of the bout.

The Roxbury [illegible] that this weakness will cause the downfall of [illegible] if he ever gets him into the ring again.

Shade was [illegible] upon a couple of weeks ago for an injury to his arm and will probably not be able to resume [illegible] for several weeks.

Pat McCarthy Ready to Knock Off Robinson

Pat McCarthy of Roxbury is in splendid physical condition and is waiting for an opportunity to battle George Robinson, Cambridge middleweight. McCarthy believes he would be able to kayo the negro. As the last contest between McCarthy and Robinson was a sensational affair, the fans would like to see these warriors meet again.

Ruby Levine Likely to Box Tony Thomas Again

Ruby Levine, Kid B[illegible] tagged battler from Lewiston, Me., will probably be signed to meet Tony Thomas at New Bedford. Levine is one of the few boxers who has been able to make things [illegible] Thomas since the [illegible] surge up the pugilistic ladder.

Kid Dube and Johnny Herman are two other stars in the Block stable who are capable of giving a good account of themselves [illegible] kind of opposition.

Sweetser Tears Up Card in Anger and Quits Tourney

By International News Service

S[illegible], May 3.—In a fit of temper [illegible] Jess Sweetser, amateur golf champion of America, [illegible] the final eighteen holes of the St. George's challenge cup tourney and declined to divulge his score to anyone.

It was an outburst comparable only with those occasionally indulged in by Bobbie Jones, another famous American golfer.

Sweetser was miles off his game [illegible] tournament, and try as he might, could not seem to regain his touch, as golfers call it. He had an 81 for eighteen holes yesterday, lacking control in and around the greens where his usual accuracy failed him. Just what his [illegible]tal was today can only be imagined.

Not only his accuracy on the greens but the control of his long game deserted him [illegible] to retrieve lost ground. He was [illegible] short with his irons [illegible]

The present season marks Sweetser's first experience with English courses [illegible] Lack of [illegible] thrown him off [illegible]

GARDINI SEEKS CALZA BOUT

George Calza, the Italian champion, [illegible] lost some of his caste in [illegible]

The reason [illegible] his failure to appear in [illegible] North End at [illegible] appointed [illegible] for the posting of a forfeit [illegible] $1500 [illegible] Renato Gardini [illegible] for the Italian championship.

When Calza did not appear Gardini who had returned to his home in this city from Chicago, proclaimed that Calza never would show [illegible] intends to return to Europe [illegible] away, said Gardini, "and [illegible] the most of his victory over Wladek Zbyszko, who by clever [illegible] work last year, made Calza look like an artful dodger in the European wrestling circles.

"Donnaruma believed all the time that Calza was sincere when he informed him that he would meet me.

"Ever since that memorable night in Newark when I [illegible] him about the mat until he yelled foul and other things he has shown no inclination to meet me. I will wrestle him any time. Now he intends to pick up his things and sail for Europe. I may have to go there after him, but I would prefer to wrestle him here."

McGLONE'S DOUBLE DEFEATS COMMERCE

RED SOX MAKE READY TO HIT WESTERN TRAIL

By NICK FLATLEY

The Western [illegible] stretch in front [illegible] Red Sox after they conclude the present engagement with Connie Mack's very snappy Athletics this afternoon. The sons of Chance, as you might call them if you feel that way about it, have dropped a pair of [illegible] the Mackerels but there's no shame in [illegible] has the dual socking discouraged the [illegible]

Connie Mack

Any team that tries [illegible] ing to the well known axiom, and the Sox were trying just as hard yesterday, for instance, when stacked up against Ed Rommell and a four-run lead, as they were at any time they've been out in front. And in case you don't know, Ed and that sort of a lead offer one of the pastime's greatest [illegible]

The Sox were beaten by an eyelash only. A hit in any one of the last three chapters would have knocked off the winning counter. The spirit of the club was noticed even by the slim Cornelius of Philadelphia fame, and Connie hasn't been noticing much since he collected a regular one of those Northern spring colds.

"The Sox are a tough club to beat," he remarked, seriously as he [illegible] went. "They never know when they're licked. The team will cause a lot of trouble out West and every where else."

Then Cornelius said a few nice things about his Athletics, something he hasn't been able to do since the dim and fusty days of long ago.

"We ought to have quite a ball club," he conceded. "Looks like a real team at last. Yes, I expect to be in the race this year."

After nine years of trial, tribulation and desolation, that's a lot for the chronically silent mentor to chirp. But all the wise birds are talking about the Macks now. If the team gets the same brand of pitching [illegible] did a year ago it's mighty difficult to see how the rest of the parade can keep [illegible] far from the pinnacle.

Interesting in a baseball way, of course, but not half as intriguing from a [illegible] viewpoint as the the fact that sturdy George Murray again demonstrated that he is a skillful as well as courageous chucker, a bird who should be almost invaluable to the always-for-sale Sox.

Crack in His Defences Gave Yankees Two Runs

Last Saturday George watched a crack in his defences give the Yankees two big runs in the very first [illegible] But he didn't quit—do it as they. He kept plugging, and eventually won his ball game. Two runs are plenty for a starter in any ball game.

Again yesterday the opening frame should have broken the heart of the young man. Three Sox errors were wrapped around two triples that were almost outfield catches, and the terrible combination meant four big runs. George didn't seem to care a bit, though. He kept steaming along, getting better and better. He deserved to win that game if ever a pitcher did.

Braves on Run Rampage Take On Phils in Final

Philadelphia, May 3.—Seems like pitching has become a lost art with the hurlers who performed in Baker's Bowl this week, for ninety two hits have caromed off the willows of the Braves and Phillies during the three game series.

Seldom in the annals of swat has this been equaled for a stretch of three games.

The Braves collected fifty-one hits off the Phillies hurlers, though the first [illegible] beginning to question whether they deserve the name of hurlers. The Phils had forty one.

Lee Winters and Lefty Weinert [illegible] them for the Phils. Joe Genewich, the Giant Killer, Dana Fillingim and Joe Oeschger did the service for Mitchell's tribe.

Genewich who startled fandom when he spanked the world's champions two games in New York [illegible] had little except his reputation against the Phils.

[illegible] Fletcher's [illegible] slammed his [illegible] house books for three runs [illegible] with a homer [illegible] and a [illegible] in just one and [illegible] third [illegible] and Joe departed for the showers.

In the third inning Winters walked [illegible] Fillingim. But this was not all. With two strikes and not a single ball called on Boeckel, Brave third baseman, he grooved one. The result [illegible] wallop into the bleachers and it scored two runs.

Then in the fifth, left Weinert walked Joe Oeschger for no apparent purpose except to bring the heavy hitters to the pan. Ray Powell, the Brave centre fielder appreciated this to the extent of clapping out a double.

Incidentally, in the three games played here, the Braves have deposited no less than thirty six runs at the plate on their fifty-one hits which is just an average of twelve runs per game. No wonder the Fletchmen can't win.

JULIAN BEATEN DECISIVELY BY TIPLITZ

Joe Tiplitz of Philadelphia decisively defeated Tony Julian of Brockton in the main bout of [illegible] rounds at the Armory A. A. show at the Grand Opera House. Tiplitz took eight of the ten rounds.

Julian took the opening round by a big margin, but after Tiplitz weathered the storm of blows he assumed the aggressive and the lead and never was headed.

In the first round Julian landed a terrific smack under Tiplitz' left eye. The punch staggered Tiplitz and raised a large lump under the optic. But Tiplitz recovered quickly and stalled off the Brockton lad until the end of the round.

Julian was courageous but was outclassed, for Tiplitz punched a good deal oftener and also a good deal harder.

Jim Reed of Brockton made the Brockton delegation feel good, for he won the preliminary by a knockout in five rounds. He defeated Jimmy Stewart of Brooklyn. Stewart went down in the third, but Reed also went to the mat in the fourth.

Spike Hennessey of Waltham defeated Jimmy Smith of Brockton in eight rounds, and Joe Roderick of Cambridge defeated Billy Nelson of Lowell in eight rounds.

JESS WILLARD PLUNGES INTO 90 MINUTES ARDUOUS WORK

FORMER CHAMPION SAYS HE IS SUPERBLY FIT

By ED CURLEY

New York, May 3—Some of the skeptical birds who can't make themselves believe that Jess Willard will be able to go more than half the fifteen-round route with Floyd Johnson when they clash in one of the two events on the gigantic Milk Fund card at the new Yankee Stadium Saturday afternoon, May 12, would be surprised if they take the trouble to go to Yonkers and see the Pottawatomie giant do his stuff.

Jess tossed orders from Business Manager Ray Archer and Jack Skelly, his temporary trainer, to the four winds and plunged into one and a half hours' arduous work. The 750 boxing enthusiasts who were crowded like sardines in the spacious Columbus Sporting Club's gymnasium could not believe their eyes when they saw the big fellow go at his work with such vim and determination

All in all Willard fought twelve rounds. He demonstrated that he still has plenty of endurance. He took on Cliff Kramer, Harry Drake and Jack Connors for four rounds each, and when he pulled up he didn't as much as blow a hard breath.

Jess used a corking straight left on Kramer's beezer and the Minneapolis giant was very thankful when Archer pulled the last bell.

Drake, the Englishman, made Jess step fast every second they were in there

Wallard, a Man of Few Words, Speaks Mind Freely

As a rule, Willard is a man of a few words, but he happened to be in good humor and he spoke his mind freely

"I am in great condition," he said "I know my condition best. I feel wonderful. That training spree I had at Excelsior Springs did me a world of good.

"I shall enter the ring and weigh around 242 pounds and be in the greatest condition of my fighting career," concluded Jess as he excused himself. "And I'll have no kick forthcoming if I am beaten."

Fans Get Another Treat As Jack McAuliffe Boxed

The retired lightweight champion's namesake, who is paired with Luis Firpo, showed some good stuff. He boxed four rounds with Buddy Jackson as a starter.

Then he "fought" six rounds punching the bag and three more with Cleve Hawkins. He split the next six rounds with the medicine ball and wrestling, respectively.

Frank E. Coultry, general manager of Madison Square Garden, reported that he has received several hundred additional orders for ringside seats. The low priced tickets are also selling very fast, especially the $5 and $7 pasteboards

Charley Cook hustled for business to the north side of Yonkers where he has Johnson training in a private gymnasium on the estate of his brother, William.

Eagle-Purple Game at Braves Field Next Fall

The tumult and the shouting has long since died away. The captains and the coaches have deserted the field of verbal battle, and it is now officially announced by the Boston College athletic authorities that the annual football classic between Boston College and Holy Cross will be played as usual next Fall at Braves Field.

There was much talk in Worcester after the 1922 battle of playing the game at Worcester. Fitton Field is too small for the throng that witnesses the final game of the two Jesuit colleges, and it is not likely that the game will be played in Worcester before Holy Cross erects a stadium.

HOLY CROSS WINS AIR TIGHT GAME AT HARVARD

In a brilliant exhibition of pitching, Owen Carroll of Holy Cross held Harvard to one hit and twirled the Purple to a 1 to 0 victory over the Crimson.

Owen Carroll

Pitcher Josselyn Young of Harvard also made a bold bid for glory. He held the Holy Cross batters to two hits and allowed a total of only three men to reach first base

Carroll permitted a like number of Crimson wearers to reach the initial sack.

The difference was that none of the Harvard men reached second, while one of the Purple runners, Carroll himself, completed the circuit with the run that won the game

The only hit recorded against Carroll was questionable In the opening inning, Gordon hit a hard grounder to Doherty, the first baseman. Doherty failed to field the ball, but the scorers registered it as a hit on the ground that it was hit so hard that it would be unfair to give Doherty an error.

Not a man reached first off Moundsman Young of Harvard during the first four innings, while in the fifth only one man got there.

In that session, however, the action took place. With one man down, Owen Carroll made the cleanest hit of the game, a smashing single to centre that went right through the pitcher's box and nearly struck Young

With "Punk" Gautreau, Holy Cross staged a hit and run play which worked successfully. Carroll started for second and Second Baseman Hammond of Harvard went over to the bag to take the throw As Hammond went for the base, Gautreau tapped a grounder between first and second bases for a well placed safety. Carroll made third and Gautreau held up at first.

Then came the most critical moment of the game. It was the only time in the whole encounter in which either team had a chance to score. The stands were tense as the next batsman, "Tweet" Walsh of Woburn strode to the platter Walsh did the necessary trick and lifted a long sacrifice fly to left field, which sent Carroll across the plate with the only run.

The fleet little Gautreau stole second base, but his fellow citizen from Cambridge, Warren Cote, grounded out to shortstop and thereby ended the inning.

Josselyn Young mowed down the Purple batsmen in one, two, three order for the rest of the game.

Carroll made four of the last five batters whiff the breeze And he not only struck them out, but he did not even allow any to touch the ball. Not even a foul ball was made off him when he cut loose with his real fire.

TOM KIRBY IN GO AT EAST BOSTON

The heavyweight and 1[illegible] pound classes are expected to furnish the big thrills at the amateur boxing tournament of Fitton Council, K. of C. tomorrow night at Columbus Hall, Maverick [illegible], East Boston.

Tom Kirby.

Tom Kirby, national amateur heavyweight, is the outstanding star in his division. However, Young Mack, Ray Moses and Jake Driscoll's unknown are expected to give Tom plenty of competition.

In the 147 pound class the following stars have entered: Eddie Sardello, Al Mello, Lowell; Chet Sears and Hunchy Beale of East Boston. There is a possibility of Joe Brennan, who is fighting in wonderful form at the [illegible] appearing in this class. [illegible] last appearance as an amateur as he is slated to turn professional in the near future. Melo and Sardello are bitter rivals, and some red hot milling will be seen when they clash.

The classes are 11[illegible], 1[illegible]6, 135, 147 and heavyweight.

BROWN SHUTS OUT PROVIDENCE, 4 TO 0

Providence, R. I., May 3.—Brown whitewashed Providence College, 4 to 0. Duggan allowed the Black and White boys only three hits one of which was a double by Halloran in the ninth. The clever southpaw also sent 11 men back to the bench on strikes.

WESLEYAN PITCHER SCATTERS BINGLES

Middletown, Ct., May 3.—Wesleyan won from Tufts, 4 to 2. The visitors made fewer errors and more hits, but Moore, the Wesleyan twirler, kept his hits well scattered.

Middlebury Wins Easily

Worcester, May 3.—Middlebury defeated Worcester Tech, 13 to 4, in a poorly played game.

Waters Out to Lower Colors of Sailor O'Grady at C. A. C.

In securing Eddie Waters, ex-amateur welterweight champion, to oppose Red O'Grady of the U. S. S. [illegible] Friday, the Commonwealth Club has picked the best boy in New England. Waters has won eight straight fights since entering the professional ranks and it looks as if the pride of the navy, with his record of 124 victories, will meet his Waterloo Friday night.

Burt Jones.

Mickey Landers, who boxes Burt Jones of Revere, will have the fight of his life, as Jones has been resting up for the last three months and is now in the pink of condition and ready to give him the battle of his life. The club, in securing Al Lewis of the South End and Billy Campi of the North End, has scored a ten-strike, as there is great rivalry between them. Both boys are [illegible] punchers and it looks as if the bout is via the K. O. route.

Arnold R[illegible] of Dorchester, who starts his professional career at this show, has picked a tartar in Ch[illegible] Costello of East Boston, but Ar[illegible] feels confident of winning his first among the [illegible].

The opener will be a grudge fight between Tommy Clayton of the West End and Barney Troy of the North End. Troy beat Clayton two weeks ago at Lynn, but Clayton, who substituted that night, declares he is in the pink of condition for this fight, and will surely reverse the decision All in all, it looks like a real night at the "Home of Action."

MIDDLESEX BATTERS MAKE RECORD SCORE

The Middlesex School baseball team piled up what is said to be a record score in private school circles of Greater Boston, when it made 37 runs against 6 in its game with Roxbury Latin nine in North Concord.

The home team made twenty-four hits and Roxbury pitchers walked thirteen. Ten misplays were made.

Middlesex's biggest inning was the fourth, when Stackpole was pounded for 14 runs. Alexander displaced him and in two innings 18 runs were made off his delivery, 13 in the sixth.

Princeton 15, Fordham 6

Princeton, N. J., May 3.—Princeton won its tenth consecutive victory and swamped Fordham, 15 to 6.

Several years ago Jack was one [illegible] in the organization of the Central Massachusetts League [illegible] Worcester [illegible] forward [illegible] and his goal scoring ability kept that team pretty much in the running.

After being released by the Quincy management, when they believed that he had outlived his usefulness as a player, he hooked up with the Worsteds and it was not long before [illegible] wanted to know where Forge Village was.

Jack resigned from the Abbot team several weeks ago and since then has been a [illegible] with [illegible] Britain at centre for the Fall River outfit in the American League.

DORCHESTER IS READY FOR OPENING

Dorchester Baseball Club will dedicate the newly remodeled John A. Doherty Playgrounds, better known as the Town Field, on next Monday evening. Dorchester will have for their opponents the strong South Boston team and this should make a good attraction for the [illegible]

Henry J. Daly.

[illegible] has a lot of new faces on his team this year Among the list of twirlers he has Al Kroog, who when right is a mighty fine box artist. Also he has his brother Arthur who is beginning to show [illegible] college [illegible], now at Boston University, will also take a turn on the hill.

For catchers he has signed George [illegible], formerly of Brockton and Bridgeport and after the College season comes to a close will have Ray Patel of Boston College.

Dick Casey is slated to play the initial sack, while the other players on the infield will be "Guppy" Morris of Seton Hall, Paul Myron of Boston College fame and Mike Splaine of Haverhill and Springfield in the Eastern League. Stone of the Old Colony nine will be carried also

"Dutch" Ward, who made his rep at Harvard, and who last season covered the outer garden for the J. J. Connolly Club, will play centre, and on his right will be "Boo" Hayes, while on the left will be Hal Wood. Hayes played for Dorchester last season, while Wood played on the University of Maine nine.

Veteran Marathon Star Faced Death in B. A. A. Race

Bill Kennedy

"It's suicide for you to try it," a doctor told Kennedy after he examined him. "You have a murmuring heart and the strain of distance running may cause a complete collapse."

"I'll chance it," decided Kennedy

He finished eighth in the race—and when it was over the murmur in the heart was gone.

"I knew it would be [illegible]," grinned Kennedy. "The old blood pumper always murmurs whenever it wants a little action. As soon as it gets it, the murmuring stops."

"Years ago, when I was a boy of twelve, someone in my class at school mutilated a textbook. The teacher kept us in after school to find the culprit, and warned us the class would not be dismissed until the guilty one confessed. After a fidgety half hour I held up my hand and told the teacher that I did it. It was a lie, but the class got out and I got a good thrashing."

JOHN J. SENNOTT, No. 321 Broadway, Chelsea:

"I don't know whether this figures as a lie or not. The facts are true. I operate a barber shop, and during the past Winter I noticed we were losing customers. It was during the coal shortage, and upon investigation I found that the little stove I had, frequently empty, was the cause of it.

"My assistant had a brilliant idea. We couldn't get any coal, but he painted the isinglass door of the stove a bright red. Business picked up at once, and soon we had the customers complaining about the heat.

"Mind over matter."

YER used to play "Captain John Smith and Pocahontas" an' yer liked to be one of the Indian braves who was about to club the captain an' yer always had hard work gettin' anyone to be the captain 'cause the cap had to lay his head on a cold stone an' suffer a girl to hug him which always spoiled the game for the guy playin' the captain.

If only yer could have played it without a girl but yer couldn't an' it was hard work selecting a girl for the part of Pocahontas because all the girls in the neighborhood wanted to play the part. You was playin' the part of the brave captain an' Mayme Burrill was playin' the part of Pocahontas an' one of the braves was Charley Edwards, an' Charley didn't like Mayme so when it come time for Mayme to save you just as the braves rushed forward Charley spanked Mayme on the bean with his club an' she ran home cryin' with her garter busted he hit her so hard besides a headache an' you almost died laffin' but vanished when Mayme's Ma came out with a switch.

Yer used to make noises like Indians by vibrating the palm of yer hand against yer open mouth as yer yelled an' everybody was readin' Cooper's "Deer Slayer" at the same time an' yer used to have arguments about the way the Indians could track people in the woods by noting disturbed leaves an' the like an' never was there a day when the gang didn't say "Gee, I'd like to have lived in those days."

Yer carried newspapers an' was always disgusted because one paper had a bum press an' yer would be kept waitin' an hour late or longer, almost every night an' yer was always furious because that kept yer luggin' papers till dark an' yer didn't have no time to squeeze in a bit o' baseball.

Yer belonged to a baseball team an' Saturday mornings yer'd play another team for ten cents a man. An' yer had to watch yer glove and couldn't throw it on the field like big leaguers did for fear some kid would pinch it. Yer used to hurry yer papers on a Saturday afternoon when there was a double-header at the ball park so as yer could hurry an' see it. The paper in your town was two cents while in big cities they was only a penny an' was snappy to read.

REMEMBER?
I'LL SAY YER DO

THE POPPY PERIL By LAUCHLIN JAMES

An Eye-Opener Romance in Which Is Depicted the Horror of What Drugs Do to Hollywood

BEGIN THIS STORY NOW

Two days after Kerry Rowan, a noted motion picture director, had visited the offices of the District Attorney in Los Angeles Rowan is found shot to death in his home with a bowl of poppies scattered on the floor beside him. Rowan has given much information whereby the drug evil in Hollywood might be attacked and had promised to risk death by testifying against those caught in raids, for the sake of a clean Hollywood and because of his sincere affection for a young film star. Then, swing back to Ireland years earlier, where we meet Kenneth Royce, just out of college who goes to China as secretary to Sir Charles Aylsmere. Here he visits opium dens. While in China Kenneth meets Lily Waite, a "Dresden china doll," but discovers Lily's father is a morphine addict and card sharp. He comes to New York, is employed in a "Far East" shop and eventually meets Carra Leyton, to whom he presents a Japanese dagger. Carra is found stabbed with the dagger in Chinatown with a deck of hop in her bag. Following Carra's death Kenneth disappears from New York and turns up at Skagway, Alaska, under the name of Kerry Rowan.

The Poppy Path Brings Only Grief

"I BELIEVE you," said Moyer. "Look at the captain! Why in blazes is he sticking around there now? Everybody must be off. He knows the guts are ripped out of her. She's liable to slide off there any minute. Why doesn't he leave?"

He had not long to wait for his answer. While the gaze of the shivering group on the rock was still fixed upon her, the luckless vessel groaned, cracked, heeled over and slipped quietly out of sight.

As she started to move there was a flash of steel on the bridge, followed by a report that reverberated against the rocks of the shore. The echoes scarce had died away before the bubbling water closed over a crumpled figure, lying inert against the rail.

"I thought so," muttered the surgeon. "It was the least he could do."

Under the spell of the tragedy so starkly enacted before him, Rowan forgot for a moment the chill that was striking at his bones. He stood staring at the darkly swirling water as if entranced, and had any of the others been listening they might have heard him murmuring to himself:

"Them that treads the poppy path has only grief to hope for."

Harrington Moyer broke the ensuing silence by remarking with an almost cheerful air of fatalism: "Well, that's all of that! Now, then, I suppose we roost on this damn rock and slowly freeze solid."

Defying the Surf.

"No fear," returned the surgeon. "They'll come out and get us before long. They seem to have made some kind of a landing, all right. All we have to do is to give them a hail."

Rowan suddenly decided to return to the States

The other three, together with several more stragglers from the overturned boat who had reached the rock at varying intervals, now faced toward the bobbing lights along the shore and lifted up their voices in a concerted shout for assistance. After a few moments they got a response, and presently a boat pushed out through the surf.

"There's pluck for you," commented Moyer, watching the struggles of the oarsmen to keep the boat's bow headed into the waves. "But suppose they do get us ashore; what then? I'd about as soon freeze here as there."

"Oh, they'll get a fire started directly," the surgeon assured him, "and some time tomorrow we ought to be picked up. The radio was going right up to the time we shoved off. Everything in these waters is headed our way, you can bank on that.

"Being shipwrecked these days is merely an inconvenience."

Discussing their adventure two days later in the smoking room of the ship that had come to their rescue, the man whom Rowan had towed to safety remarked, with evident feeling, "The doctor can call that a mere inconvenience if he wants to, but if it hadn't been for you, Mr. Rowan, I know one man who wouldn't be here to tell about it. I've tried to tell you already how I feel about what you did for me, but I want to add that if you are ever in need of a little help yourself—and we all are, sometimes—you know who to come to."

The speaker had introduced himself as Peter Fitch of Hollywood, Cal., and in the course of their conversation Rowan had learned that he was the executive head of one of the large motion picture companies which had sprung into such luxuriant bloom in the neighborhood of Los Angeles.

An Implied Offer

He had been to Alaska to study the feasibility of making pictures of the Far North amid the actual surroundings in which their stories were laid, and, incidentally, to take a much needed vacation.

"Nothing to it," he had told his rescuer, in discussing the object of his trip. "We can go right up into our own mountains and fake the snow scenes for a fraction of what it would cost us to ship an outfit to Alaska. All we need is some one who knows the country to check us up on the local color, some one like yourself, for instance. Did you ever think of trying the pictures, Mr. Rowan?"

"No," Rowan had replied. "You see, I haven't been an actor very long and my debut was made in Alaska. I may have a go at it some day, but just now I've agreed to go with Moyer and his company to Honolulu."

"I see. Well, I won't try to dissuade you from that, of course, but I wish you'd promise to come down and see me when you return. Will you do that?

"A man in your profession can't afford to neglect our end of it. It's the big end, these days, and getting bigger all the time."

Young Movie Director, in Love With Film Star, Shot to Death After Giving Evidence

Rowan cheerfully gave him the promise he asked and a few days later, at Vancouver, their paths separated. It was some three weeks afterward, as he and Harrington Moyer sat one afternoon on the enchanting beach in front of the Moana Hotel at Honolulu, that Rowan told his companion what Fitch had said.

A Blonde Beauty

"I don't think you'd like working in pictures," the old actor opined. "Better come along with us to Australia when our run here is over. I suppose I am biased in the matter, but personally I hate the movies like poison. They have all but ruined my end of the show business.

"I have to keep going further and further into the sticks all the time, but as long as I can make a dollar at it I'd rather be my own boss, 'barring the provinces,' than to work for Fitch Films, Incorporated, at a thousand dollars a week. You'll like Melbourne and Sydney. Better come with us."

"I'll see," replied Rowan, lazily. "It's terrible having to make a decision of any kind in this climate. This place suits me, too [illegible]."

All his dreams of Honolulu had been more than borne out by the reality, and Rowan was loath to think of leaving, no matter which way he decided to go. Honolulu's theatregoers had taken kindly to him; business was good; he had saved a little money; why worry about anything? After his four years of war and his experience in Alaska this gentle island was to him a tangible place of heaven.

"I'll wager you won't see any girls in Australia any prettier than that one," he challenged, indicating a shapely miss who was launching a surf board near by.

"Very choice," admitted Moyer. "Very choice, indeed."

"That doesn't half tell it. I've noticed her on the beach several times lately and for sheer blond beauty she's the most perfect thing I ever saw. Only a youngster, of course—not more than eighteen, I'd say—but so far as features go she's absolutely flawless. Probably hasn't a penny's worth of brains, but with that face she won't need any."

As he spoke, the girl was paddling leisurely along in the direction of the incoming breakers. Taking the first of the rollers at an angle, she surmounted them neatly and selected one of the more promising ones for her attempt at a swift ride back to shore. Apparently she miscalculated its speed, for before she could bring the surf board around with its nose toward the beach the waves overtook her, tore the board from her grasp and thrust her ruthlessly beneath it as it passed.

"By George!" cried Rowan, springing to his feet. "That looked like a nasty bump."

Revived Feelings.

Racing down the narrow pier in front of the hotel, he took a running dive over the rail of the little pavilion at its outer end and came up within a few yards of the floating surf board. The girl had come to the surface and was paddling mechanically, but her face wore a dazed look and she was making no sort of progress. Docilely she permitted Rowan to tow her ashore and it was not until she was safe on the sand once more that she found her voice to thank him.

THE GO-GETTER

AT ORPHEUM THEATRE THIS WEEK

"The Go-Getter," by Peter B. Kyne, has been created into a superlative photo play by Cosmopolitan Productions, direction E. H. Griffith, scenario by John Lynch.

Screen Version Novelized

By Jane McLean

NOR was he deaf to the pawing and clawing of the dog when a few minutes later the pursuer paused in front of the entrance to the dark cellar. The fence had his own ideas of what might happen to anyone rash enough to follow one of his gentlemen into the cellar; he was not disposed to interfere for various reasons. If Lucky Luke killed the intruder, that was Luke's affair; if, on the other hand, the intruder killed Luke, that would inevitably redound to the proprietor's advantage since he had taken the precaution to go out and fasten the door by which both men had entered.

It was easier to hit unwelcome visitors over the head as they emerged into the store proper by means of the narrow ladder which gave access to the floor above.

The fence waited; there was a terrific struggle going on in the cellar; he heard Luke and the stranger grappling; he heard more than one fall and he concluded that there would be one dead man if not two before the affair was finished.

He was not quite right. Mr. Peck on his part and Lucky Luke on his did each his best to lay his opponent out, but the result was long in doubt. Bill Peck was handicapped by his stiff leg, but his fighting spirit was up and if Mr. Luke imagined he was dealing with an effeminate member of the favored classes he was soon undeceived.

The two men clinched and rolled over the dirty cellar floor. Not a word was spoken and the dog who followed hither and thither was the only spectator of the struggle.

A blow from the thief brought blood to Bill's lip; the blue vase lay on the floor and the sight of it gave fresh vigor to his attack. Mr. Luke, just when he thought he was having the better of the argument, became aware that his antagonist's finger were closing about his throat and then felt his head being pounded with terrific force up and down against the cement. Thereafter consciousness left him and the victor, gathering up the vase, looked around him for means of a speedy exit.

The locking of the trap door by the Fence shut off escape into the street, but he observed the narrow stairs leading to the shop above and without calculating the chances started to climb, with the vase under his arm.

If like a fly he had possessed eyes that could see around corners he would have hesitated before taking a further step. As it was he presented a splendid target to the owner of the shop who stood to one side just beyond the opening with a heavy slungshot raised for business.

It was well for Mr. Peck that he had replaced the tall hat on his head, even though it was a wreck of its former self. No sooner had the hat appeared than the slung shot descended and the young man lay sprawling half above and half below the opening. The Fence seized the vase, set it on a box and dragged the victim to the floor. Mr. Peck knew enough to make no sign. Half dead he realized what had hit him, and he knew that a second blow would follow if he showed the slightest signs of life.

FURNITURE IN HOME

—By Marian Moore—

DINING-ROOM furniture is now being designed in small cottage or apartment sizes, so the complete dining-room suite may now be installed in a small dining room without crowding.

The china cabinet in the illustration is one of the new designs, being considerably smaller than the more common ones. It is also a modern adaptation of the Castillan period furniture, showing its origin in the floor runners, the beaded moulding, and the straight lines, but fashioned to meet the present day needs in quality, style and service. It can be secured in birch and American walnut.

THE BOY THAT FAILED

FATHER had planned a brilliant future for him. Mother's high hopes for his success were supported ably by her everlasting faith in him.

But the boy was a bitter disappointment. He was being outdistanced steadily by his schoolmates, was dull, listless all the time, "felt sick" most of the time, never had "pep" for play nor ambition for his future.

Father had about given him up. Poor mother's heartstrings were nearing the breaking point. Evidently, it was not to be.

Then an old friend of the family—a man successful in every sense—came to the boy's rescue. Today, the father is proud of the boy who is indeed a joy to his mother.

It was simply a case of poor digestion, sluggish liver and constipation gradually dulling the senses and poisoning the system.

Knowing from experience that Beecham's Pills were harmless as well as efficient, the old friend suggested them. They made the boy well—as they have hosts of other children, and grown-ups, too, who suffered from like disorders.

THIS LITTLE BABY GIRL

Was Benefited by the Good Her Mother Got from Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Pittsburgh, Pa.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before my little girl was born, and the effect it had was wonderful. This will be the first child I have nursed as I had to bring my two boys up on the bottle. I was very nervous and worried, tired all the time, and after I read about the Vegetable Compound I tried it and kept on with it. I still continue its use and recommend it to my friends. You may publish these facts as a testimonial for your medicine."—Mrs. WM. KLINGE, 169 Plymouth S., Pitttsburgh, Pa.

It is remarkable how many cases have been reported similar to this one. Many mothers are left in a weakened and run-down condition after the birth of the child, and for such mothers the care of the baby is well-nigh impossible. Not only is it hard for the mother, but the child itself will indirectly suffer.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for the mother at this time. It is prepared from medicinal roots and herbs, and does not contain any harmful drugs.

NUXATED IRON

The Champion Hit Like A Sledge Hammer —A Secret of His Terrible Punch

Revealed by the present world's heavy-weight champion. Great difference between strength, energy and endurance of weak and strong men may all be due to the kind of food they eat.

Make This Amazing Test

RECENTLY the writer asked Jack Dempsey, world's heavy-weight champion if he would tell the public, the secret of his tremendous power and terrible punch. Dempsey's statement was as follows: "We cannot all be champions but every man's strength, energy and endurance, and the power of his punch, all depend upon the strength and energy of the millions of cells that compose your body, and the physical strength of these cells depends absolutely upon the food you eat—that is, the material with which they are fed, just like a house that is built of boards or mud is not so strong as one built of stone or iron. The most important element in building strong and forceful cells is a peculiar form of iron found in the husks of grain and the peels and skins of certain fruits and vegetables. But modern methods of cooking throw these important things away so that probably nineteen people out of twenty lack 100% iron in their blood. In training for a big fight to help my body build strong, iron like cells, I always mix a little of this peculiar form of iron demanded by these cells with my daily food. There is often an astonishing change in even two weeks' time."

Jack Dempsey, heavy weight champion of the world and the marvel of the age, always uses food iron while training. You too, should make this amazing test. Test your strength on a gymnasium weight machine then try mixing a little of this peculiar form of iron required by your cells with your daily food, for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see if you are not surprised with astonishing results. This food iron is comparatively inexpensive and may be obtained from your druggist under the name of Nuxated Iron. It should be mixed with your food as directed on each package. Don't make a mistake and get some of the older forms of iron instead of Nuxated Iron, which is a totally different thing. Ask for an unbroken package and look for the word Nuxated on the label.

FORBES' VIEWS ON FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

The indignation aroused by the cruel rise in the price of sugar is not to be regarded as a tempest in a tea cup. It carries a very deep and serious and emphatic lesson for financial and business leaders in this country. They will do well to sense the underlying meaning of the episode and be guided accordingly in all their activities.

What does the incident, what does the uprising reveal?

It reveals that neither high finance nor big business, neither any industry nor any corporation, no matter how powerful, can snap its fingers in the face of the American public without bringing upon itself drastic hitting back. It reveals that even though the arm of the law may not be long enough to reach out and grab business evil doers by the nape of the neck, the public can and will find effective means of seizing the evil doers and bringing them to book.

* * *

No, the rank and file of the people of this country are not defenceless against even the strongest of financial or industrial interests.

* * *

Out of evil sometimes comes good. This sugar episode, regrettable and harmful from almost every point of view, will at least tend to induce powerful business interests to watch their step lest they tred on the toe of the American public and invite a very swift and very severe kick.

* * *

Capitalists in this country have ceased to fear any Bolshevistic movement. But do they all realize that the stirring up of such resentment as has been incited by this boosting of sugar prices fosters something which could well become almost as crippling as Bolshevism?

Let first one industry and then another arouse the hatred of the great majority of American households, and the inevitable result would be clamor for the passing of law after law, each aimed at curtailing the freedom and clipping the wings of our business men and our business enterprises.

The sobering truth is that there is today a portentous trend of feeling in this direction.

* * *

Make it your business to drop into conversation with a dozen ordinary workers in diverse lines of work, and you will probably be astounded to find how many of them feel sore towards "Wall Street," towards "capitalists," towards "profiteers."

* * *

Radical politicians are keenly alive to the widespread existence of this kind of sentiment. Hence, they are planning to bring forward legislation distasteful to the financial and business world, but popular with the masses, or at least popular with those having a very imperfect understanding of the A B C of economics, of how capital functions, of how industry operates, of the necessity for profits if we are to have national progress.

* * *

Every incident like this sugar-boosting converts just so many more bread-winners to the cause of anti-capitalism and hastens the fettering of industry by restrictive, maternalistic legislation.

* * *

The president of the largest sugar refining company in America may come forward with a warning that a sugar boycott would dislocate the whole machinery, the whole process for bringing sugar from the field to the breakfast table, with unfortunate consequences alike to all the sugar people and to the public themselves. But is it reasonable to expect housewives and working-class heads of families to sit back and do nothing—except pay higher and still higher prices for sugar for their children and themselves while unpatriotic, shortsighted, mercenary gamblers enjoy a riotous orgy for the lining of their own pockets?

* * *

Responsible sugar refiners and other sugar interests should turn their batteries, not against those who urge less consuming of sugar, but against the sugar gamblers.

It is hard to believe that leaders in the sugar industry do not know, for example, just who have been the most flagrant sugar manipulators and gamblers. If they do, it would help a whole lot if they were to confide the names of these flim-flammers both to the authorities and to some of their newspapers friends.

GOOD TONE FOR STEEL ISSUES IS SHOWN

Oils were firm and the most active group today in trading on the New York Stock Exchange. The market became irregular after early strength. There was a good tone in the steel issues. Most price changes were small. Money renewed at 4½ per cent.

Gains of 2 points or better appeared for Bosch Magneto, du Pont and Stewart-Warner Speedometer.

There were point or more advances in Corn Products, on which extra dividend is looked for, Gulf States Steel, Mack Truck, Central Leather, Royal Dutch, Stromberg Carburetor and Studebaker.

Union Pacific rallied over a point, then sacrificed most of its gain.

CONFLICTING MOVEMENTS.

Conflicting price movements took place at the openings with gains and losses about evenly divided.

Initial transactions were confined largely to minor specialties. In the equipments, American Locomotive advanced a point and Lima ½, while Baldwin yielded slightly. Cuba Cane Sugar preferred and Cuban-American were heavy, but Punta Alegre advanced nearly a point.

United Railways Investment preferred and Famous Players advanced 1 to 1½ points.

MARK TAKES TUMBLE.

A good demand was noted for the independent steel, public utility, motor, oil and rail shares, but the gains were of a moderate character. Brooklyn Edison and Kenney Tobacco advanced 1 to 1½ points. Remington Typewriter, off a point, was the only conspicuous weak spot.

Another cut in Pennsylvania Crude Oil prices was without effect on the oil shares in the early trading.

The feature of the foreign exchange market was an overnight break of 4½ points in German marks, which dropped to .0025 cents or 40,000 to the American dollar.

Demand sterling eased slightly to $4.63⅝ and French francs dropped 4 points to 6.59 cents.

PENNSYLVANIA CRUDE OIL IS CUT AGAIN

Pittsburgh, May 3—A cut of 25 cents a barrel was announced in the principal grades of Pennsylvania crude oil.

DRUG PRICES IN SWING UPWARD

Drug and Chemical Markets says: Imported bromides are higher as spot stocks enter into consumption and higher cost foreign material comes into this market. Prices for German bromides are still below American makers' schedule in spite of the tariff. Citric and tartaric acid, as well as cream of tartar, are both stronger in New York and London. American makers are sold well ahead. A futher sharp rise this week in amidopyrine is expected.

Quicksilver is slightly firmer. Oil citronella strengthened up early this week after a dull period and small demand. Oils of wormseed and caraway are very scarce. The trade is looking for lower prices on menthol and demand is consequently very light.

CONTINENTAL MILLS.

To G. D. S., Revere street—Condensed analysis for which you ask follows: Continental Mills—Incorporated in 1866 in Maine. Plant at Lewiston, Me. Equipped with 97,250 spindles and 2,670 looms. Manufactures cotton sheetings, twills, lawns, sateens, muslins and yarns. Capital stock $1,500,000. No funded debt. Surplus and reserves June 30, 1922—$2,301,868. Present dividend rate 8 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually February and August 10.

STANDARD OIL BOND.

To L. O., Bowen street—The sole funded debt of Standard Oil of California is the $25,000,000 issue of debenture 7s, 1931. Prior to 1921 it had no funded debt and in that year it earned interest charges more than twenty-one times. Since the Standard Oil dissolution of 1911 the company has had a consistently high record of earnings. The 7s are a direct obligation, not secured by mortgage; the company is not to issue any mortgage prior to this obligation. They are redeemable as a whole at 104 with a reduction of ¼ of 1 per cent. in premium every six months to maturity. A sinking fund of $500,000 a year is set aside to buy debentures under par. Issued in $1,000 denomination, they yield 6.15 per cent. Interest, February and August.

Mills at Fall River equipped with 45,000 spindles and 1,100 looms. WILSON FIRST 6s—

To O. P., Walden street—If you will wait a few weeks before buying the bonds you list, it is not unlikely that you will be able to secure them at fairly substantial reductions from present prices. Wilson & Co. showed definite recovery in the year 1922 from the bad times it suffered in 1920 and 1921. Interest charges were covered amply and 10.88 per cent. was earned on its preferred stock. For the ten years prior to last its average earnings were fair. The company has about $50,000,000 funded debt. Of this $23,330,000 consists of the first sinking fund 6s, 1941. They are a first lien on all plants and equipment, branch house property and real estate of the company and its subsidiaries. The company has five main packing plants owned direct and eight others owned through subsidiaries besides 120 distributing stations. The bonds, issued in $1,000 form, yield 6.20 per cent. Interest April and October.

MAUD ADAMS MAY RETURN TO STAGE

New York, May 3.—Daniel Frohman, theatrical producer, revealed the most interesting news today that the American stage has received in many months when he said:

"Miss Maud Adams will return to the stage, if she is fortunate in finding a play which satisfies her."

Maud Adams

This happy news will be a surprise to friends and admirers of Miss Adams all over the world, who have been led to believe that the famous creator of "Peter Pan" had withdrawn from public life forever. Only last week, when she returned from Europe and refused to be interviewed by the newspapers, it was printed that her silence was only another indication of her complete retirement from the stage.

"Miss Adams' silence, which she has maintained for some few years, does not indicate her retirement," Frohman said. "She has held a unique and beautiful place in the admiration of the public and naturally she does not wish to come back to the stage in a play which might tend to lessen this admiration. Many plays have been submitted to her, but none has suited.

Bright Spots in Shadowland

IRENE RICH has been signed by Mary Pickford to play the role of queen in her forthcoming romance of nineteenth century Spain, in which Miss Pickford is cast as Rosita, a street singer. Miss Rich, whose work in "Brass" recommended her for the part with Miss Pickford, will take the place of Clare Eames, a legitimate stage actress from New York, who had been originally cast. Illness forced Miss Eames to retire from studio activity for the present. Miss Rich will play opposite Holbrook Blinn, who will take the part of the king.

Irene Rich

NOAH BEERY, JR., eight-year-old son of the famous screen villain now appearing in Rex Beach's novel, "The Spoilers," always says after seeing one of his father's pictures:

"Daddy, I'll bet you could have licked that man if you wanted to."

Beery replies: "Of course I could, Sonny."

And then Noah, Jr., is satisfied.

RICHARD Walton Tully is producing "Trilby" at the United Studios in Hollywood. His cousin, Tully Marshall, is appearing on an adjoining stage in a production of "The Brass Bottle." So a pleasant little family reunion occurs almost every day, now. "Don't tell me there is nothing to pre-natal influence," laughed Richard Walton Tully. "Tully Marshall was playing circus in our backyard the day I was born. So it was fore-ordained, you see, that I became a showman."

A WANT AD IN THE EVENING AMERICAN BRINGS SURE RESULTS FOR QUICK SERVICE CALL MAIN 5180

Rebuke the petty whining that spoils many lives, in Boston as in other cities.—Dean James A. Beebe, Boston University.

BOSTON AMERICAN

Largest Evening Circulation in New England—May 3, 1923

In addition to a surplus of $2,039,134 in 1921-22, the city of Boston had accounts receivable, 1921 and prior taxes amounting to over $7,000,000.

"Between You and I" to Correct a Friend Is to Help a Friend

But a Majority Injure Their Friends by False Praise, or Silence

Copyright, 1923, Star Company

If you saw your friend on the railroad track with the train coming behind him, you would push him off, even if you had to do it roughly.

If he tripped walking downstairs, you would seize and hold him, even if you had to pinch his arm.

If you were pulling him half drowned from the water, you would hit him on the head if necessary to make him unconscious, in order that you might get him safely to shore.

In physical matters you do not hesitate to do whatever may be NECESSARY in order to render service to a friend.

But in the way of "little things" a great majority of us neglect our duty and miss opportunities day after day, of rendering real service. The service that one friend can render another is found in frankness, in honest, friendly criticism, giving information that seems not important in each case, but that, taken all together, mean much in life and in success.

Chances to do real and valuable favors in the way of friendly little hints come every day. On April 15 the New York Sunday American published an editorial emphasizing the fact that, while we all THINK we like the truth, most of us are afraid of it.

> How many of us can bear to hear the truth even in little things? Every reader probably has some friend who, with an elaborate effort to be correct, says constantly, "Between you and I." Each time you know that, as a matter of friendship, you ought to say to him, "That's inaccurate. Why don't you say, 'Between you and me'? Every time you say, 'Between you and I' you reveal fundamental ignorance."
>
> But we DON'T say that, we only THINK it, and go on.
> How many drunkards would have been saved from ruin if their friends had told them from the very first, "You were drunk last night and not fit company for anybody." Instead of that, the friend, if questioned, will say, "Oh, no, you were all right." Then the poor fool, on his way to a drunken life, congratulates himself on his ability "to carry a great deal," and for lack of the truth he drifts on to a point where the Trust can no longer help him.

Millions of people say "I done it," which is incorrect, instead of "I did it," which is correct. Their friends HEAR them make the mistake over and over again and never TELL them that it is a mistake.

Others mispronounce words, putting the accent on the wrong syllable. They will pronounce "equitable" with the accent on the second syllable all their lives and nobody tells them that it is wrong.

Any one of a thousand such little mistakes could easily be corrected by a few friendly words, and a man has a narrow mind that is not grateful for such correction. There is no disgrace in ignorance. The disgrace is in not BEING WILLING TO LEARN.

Mistakes in use of language, no matter how trifling, have their real importance. They stamp a man or woman as ignorant, at least in one direction. They show that early surroundings of the person making the mistake were such as to instil mistaken use of the English language. A man's use of his own tongue tells more about his origin than anything else.

There is no real friendship without FRANKNESS. Tell your friend HIS faults and ask him to tell you YOURS. By his attitude toward your friendly correction you will know what kind of a friend he is and how much common sense he has, and by your own gratefulness, or lack of it, when you are corrected, CORRECTLY you may judge yourself.

Nearly 'Whispered to Death'

Boston American Appealed to Governor Cox, Who With the Legislature Saved Necessaries of Life Commission

We feel very much like congratulating the Legislature and Governor Cox upon the eleventh-hour good resolution of the Senate and the House of Representatives to save the Commission on the Necessaries of Life, of which Mr. Eugene C. Hultman is the head.

On Monday, just before the last gasp of the commission, the Boston American appealed to Governor Cox to throw himself into the breach and save a body of officials which has done this Commonwealth a great deal of good when other officials were found wanting. As one of our contemporaries said when it was believed that the commission could not live, its opponents had been "whispering it to death."

In the old days of the private management of our street railways—when the railroads were prosperous and powerful—the practice of "whispering" a measure to death had become a fine art constantly employed by the combined lobby which ruled our State government with an iron hand.

The national government broke up the railroad lobby when it took possession of the railroads during the war. Since their almost tragic return to their old private managers these managers have been kept so busy taking care of strikes, deflating labor and raising passenger fares and freight rates that they have not yet had time to organize an old-fashioned railroad lobby at the State Houses of Maine, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

The public operation of the street railways of the State has destroyed THAT vicious lobby so that "whispering" a bill to death had become almost a lost art. The Associated Industries, a combine which has taken the place of the railroad and street railroad lobbies, has not yet had time to organize its lobby as efficiently as the old transportation lobby was organized, nor will it ever be so powerful.

But the reason the "whispering" campaign against Hultman came so near being successful is that the scope of Hultman's duties compels him to investigate all kinds of profiteering and makes him all kinds of powerful enemies among the organized groups of profiteers, who combined against him accordingly.

We believe that Governor Cox probably saved the day. We hope that it was our appeal that stirred him to action.

JUDGES ON DIVORCE CURES

ELMYRA, O., May 3.—"Cut the expenses and extravagances" is the recipe voiced by Common Pleas Judge A. R. Webber for curing divorce evils. "Change the laws. Nationalize them," declares Judge W. B. Thompson. With Lorain County's population less than one-tenth what it was fifty years ago, records show that 177 divorces were granted last year, compared with twenty-two a half-century ago.

Last year there were 559 marriages, compared with 455 in 1873. Most of the marriages fifty years ago were consummated when the parties were very young. Today many of those married are elderly persons.

Blocking Traffic

Editor Boston American:

If an auto breaks down on the street car tracks, cannot the railroad officials or the police remove same to allow traffic to go on? The other day a wheel came off of one on Bennington street, East Boston, holding up the cars for forty-five minutes, according to the watch of one of the passengers. I asked the railroad inspector why it was not removed, and he replied: "The owner will not let us take it off." The railroad wrecking car was sent for, also a garage called up, and it took the men that length of time to put on the wheel which had simply lost a nut and came off. Why should the repair work be done on the track, holding up eight cars, instead of being pushed to the curb, where it could be done just as well? It does not seem possible that one man has the right to block traffic in spite of the road and the police.

Make France Pay

Editor Boston American:

As Americans we have no pecuniary interest in seeing that Germany pays our heavy debtor, France. That is not our business and, furthermore, we are under no obligations to our sister republic, France, but we do consistently demand that she pay us back the billions she owes us and quit waging her militarism in the Ruhr. NEPTUNE TAKES OLD JOHN BARLEYCORN AS A PARTNER

By Herbert Kaufman

NEPTUNE abandons salt water for whiskey. Adds a cocktail shaker to his trident and enters into partnership with old John Barleycorn. With one dissenting opinion the Supreme Court confirms maritime bar licenses. Its decision establishes a permanent foot rail three miles and one inch beyond local coast lines.

Constitutional amendment outlawed strong drink from the United States, but can't control sea thirsts. Rum is without a country one-half hour off shore.

Bootleg fleets maintaining their proper distance are not subject to the Volstead act. All vessels, irrespective of flag, may carry and sell alcoholic drinks instantly they pass a now irrevocable dead line.

International agreement alone can erase it. Congress will doubtless revise present statutes and later prohibit American craft furnishing liquor to their passengers and crews. Washington's power isn't universal. Prohibition flounders in deep waters.

Dead Men Tell Some Tales

Certain Northwestern University students are likely to be in very hot water if Evanston police prove their claim that Leighton Mount was killed in a class rush.

Missing since 1921, the boy's tied skeleton has just been found hidden under a Lake Michigan pier. An ugly and cowardly business.

The news remembers how barbarously other youngsters were hazed at the same time. One lad, tied head downward by fellow hooligans, was left suspended from a post. Sheer luck that he didn't die, too. Men go to jail for far less than that.

Colleges must stop this sort of thing. Faculties are responsible for the lives as well as instruction of their charges. President Scott issues orders against further class fights and demonstrations. He is somewhat late in locking the stable door.

Higher education hereby loses more friends and will continue to invite criticism until its courses are marked with restraint and practicality. Too many wasters, rowdies and misfits are graduating from the factories of learning. Society and success both demand a better product.

He Watched the Trains Go By

At forty-two he controls five big railroads and is re-elected chairman of the Chesapeake & Ohio.

Some day soon he'll cross the continent on his own rails.

Thirty years ago he watched the trains go by; fast ones don't stop at small towns.

So freckled, barefoot boys are always wondering where they start and go. Locomotive sirens lure them to adventure. Their imaginations hop every express and ride the lands-of-what-may-be.

City folk have no horizons except skyscrapers. For them everything seems already done. All the distances are walled from their fancy.

Books of knowledge explain astronomy to the nursery, but don't disclose the stars of hope.

Ancient conquerors came down from the mountains and up from the valleys.

Progress still seeks her leaders yonder.

Here's a man you never heard of. But civilization, studying its balance sheet, acknowledges universal debt to his doggedness.

Alexander D. Mebane is dead at Lockhart, Texas. His big idea didn't come from a professor or a Carnegie library. Neither was around the neighborhood when he began to think nature hadn't exerted herself for the cotton planter.

Mebane simply did one thing.

He taught a hundred bales of cotton to grow where eighty had been gathered before. The consequent yield brought solvency and then prosperity to the South, added billions to national wealth, restrained living costs earth over and raised acreage values of whole States 20 per cent.

He gets a paragraph when he dies. He ought to have a monument.
